Once Was Plenty
Mr. Teagle's Job
Very Wonderfully
Ivan's and Peter's Land
——By Arthur Brisbane——

FRANCE WILL CONSULT the United States concerning the reply that the French government should make to Germany's demand for the right to build up another great army.

Let us hope this government will reply briefly about as follows:

"The size of Germany's army is Germany's business and your business if you care to make it so. It is not the business of the United States. Please settle your own quarrels among yourselves; we intend to be one of your rows. Once is enough."

Yesterday's late news told of three hundred Chinese bandits killed in Manchuria by Japanese regular troops. If Japan or China should ask our opinion concerning that incident in civilization's progress, we should again reply:

"That is China's business and Japan's business, not ours."

Many attempts are made to bring this country back to normal conditions. Minding our own business for a change might be a step in the right direction.

Walter G. Teagle, able citizen, head of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has, at the request of President Hoover, taken charge of the "share-the-work movement."

The idea is to divide such jobs, employment and salaries as exist among a larger number of workers, thus diminishing the number absolutely without employment or income.

Mr. Teagle, who has abandoned his own private undertakings in the public interest, hopes, on a reasonably satisfactory basis, to find work for at least one million men and women, and that jobs may possibly be provided for two millions.

While waiting for ancient prosperity, with jobs more numerous than workers, to return, it is a good idea to make existing jobs useful to as many as possible.

You repeat piously the text "I will praise the Lord, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made," and add "Almost TOO fearfully and wonderfully," when you read that the thyroid gland, on which human energy depends, secretes a product called "thyroxin" containing iodine. This iodine-bearing thyroxin, thrown into the blood stream by the thyroid gland, regulates the amount and quality of sleep. If your blood contains the right amount of thyroxin, you sleep well. If you have too much of that specially prepared iodine, you have insomnia.

Some day science may find a way of controlling and coordinating our mysterious conglomeration of glands—thyroid, adrenal, pituitary and the rest of them—thus making possible conservation of energy to the age of 150, which should be the minimum.

At present, health is a fearful muddle. If you haven't enough iodine in the blood, goitre starts, and you may become a moron. If you have too much iodine, you cannot sleep.

The Greeks must have known something when they wrote above their temple door "Nothing in Excess." And "Not Too Much, Not Too Little," is the world's wisest advice.

When Ivan the Terrible made one of his trips in Russia, to Nijni-Novgorod for instance, where he murdered so many, butchering women, including nuns, in his process of making one single nation out of Russia, travel was slow.

When Peter the Great, who Europeanized Russia by bringing in engineers, mechanics and scientists from Western Europe, dragged from their graves those that had plotted against him, he loaded their frightful corpses on sleds drawn by swine. That was slow transportation.

If they lived today those ancient Czars would be amazed at Russia's speed. The Soviet Government, described sometimes by our "best minds" as "utterly incapable," has established 35,000 miles of air routes. It would have taken Peter the Great many weeks to travel from Moscow to Irkutsk. A fast train could travel the distance in five and one-half days. Modern Russian officials make the journey, by airplane, in 36 hours.

It should interest this government to know that Russia is second only to the United States in air line mileage, and will probably soon surpass us.

There is no doubt that Paul D. Cravath, chairman of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and others associated with him will be glad to arrange for complete operatic broadcasting. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is known to be much interested in this educational public service. There could be imagined no stranger "dog in the manger" policy than confining to one small audience music that might delight millions outside.

Dudley St. Car Rams Another Stalled as Trolley Jumps; 3 of Victims Women

Eleven persons required hospital treatment and 50 others were bruised or shaken up as the result of a crash of two cars in the Park st. subway today, between Boylston station and Broadway.

A car from City Point, bound for the North Station, was stalled on the rails, unlighted, with its trolley off the wire, when it was struck by a North Station bound car from Dudley st.

The impact was severe. Approximately 50 passengers in each car were hurled to the floors or against the backs of seats ahead. Women screamed and one woman fainted.

Most of the injured were not removed to ambulances and taxicabs until the cars later reached Park st. station, although two were rendered unconscious.

4 BANDITS ROB 4 GIRLS AT GUN-POINT

Get $300 and Papers in Allston, but Arrive Too Late for Plant Payroll

In a bold daylight holdup of an Allston cleansing house, two bandits held up four girl clerks today and escaped with more than $300 and valuable papers. They missed $1500 which had just been paid out to employes.

The bandits, accompanied by a third who drove the car, had followed Mrs. Eva Swift, 25, a clerk from a bank in Harvard ave., nearby.

Believing she had a payroll, they allowed Mrs. Swift time to reach the office and then entered to hold up her as well as Miss Alice Barton, 21, of Hano st., Allston, Miss Hope Seabury, 20, of Upland rd., Somerville, and Miss Marion Casey, 22, of Lincoln st., Allston.

"Where's the money and don't move!" one of the bandits ordered.

Mrs. Swift tried to engage them in conversation but the bandits spied a cash box on Miss Casey's desk. They snatched it and left to join the third man in the auto.

The girls spread the alarm to the adjoining factory and George Watkins, service manager, chased the bandits through Braintree and Cambridge sts., but lost them in traffic.

Howard in Own Story of Tragedy Vows He Was Honest Until Strange Theft

EXCLUSIVE!

(Pictures and Other News of Frank Howard's Story on Page 8.)

Frank Howard, 72, back in State Prison for life because he broke 18 years of parole and stole a pair of shoes, sat with his chin cupped in his trembling hands in the prison this afternoon and told the Boston Evening American his story.

He wants another chance. He wants to come out and rejoin his wife and daughter, who never knew, until last Tuesday, that he had a prison record.

READ this amazing story of an old man who has gone to prison for life because he stole a pair of shoes. Then write the Boston Evening American your opinion whether Gov. Ely and the council should grant him a full pardon.

"I want to go back to them," he said, his voice little more than a whisper. "They believed in me and I was an honest man. They didn't know I had been paroled from a life sentence. I kept my past covered from them for 18 years—until—until this.

"I COULDN'T TELL"

"I didn't want them to know even after this but they had to know. I couldn't tell them myself."

His ran his blue-veined, thin hands through his white hair.

"I am very thankful to the Boston Evening American for what they have done towards getting me out. I have read its stories.

Norman Sails for Home in Huff at Expose

Montreal, Sept. 3—Montagu Norman, head of the Bank of England, who has been in the United States under the lias of "Professor Skinner" on a mission linked to cancellation of foreign war debts, sailed back home yesterday.

As mysteriously as he slipped into the United States incognito the British financial czar embarked on the Duchess of Bedford and refused to discuss his war debt mission with reporters.

NAME OMITTED

"Professor Skinner," as he chose to be known during a series of internationally ominous financial parleys in Washington and New York, came here with his wife from Bar Harbor, Me., and immediately drove his automobile up the ship's gangway for vehicles.

He did not use the name "Skinner" on the ship's passenger list. Instead, his name was omitted from the list entirely. He readily admitted his identity.

That, however, was all he would admit.

Asked about the connection of his secret visit with negotiations for reduction or cancellation of $11,000,000,000 in war debts owed

The Boston Evening American Will Not Be Issued Monday, Sept. 5 Labor Day

the United States by European powers, the shrewd governor of the bank of England replied testily:

"I have nothing whatever to say."

To an inquiry as to why he chose to travel in the United States under an assumed name, Norman replied even more crisply:

"I refuse to argue with you."

Then he turned to the newspapermen who had surrounded him at the cabin stairway of the vessel and said:

"Now wouldn't this be a good time and place to say goodbye."

SEEKS HUGE LOAN

Norman's face was bronzed from the few weeks he has spent at Bar Harbor, Me., as the guest of a Philadelphia society matron—only a short distance from the estate of Thomas W. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Company, International bankers and fiscal agents in the United States for Britain.

Before his secret conferences with bankers and others in America, Norman is understood to have brought with him from England a definite program of six points, including:

Reduction or cancellation of the $11,000,000,000 in war debts owed the United States; a $5,000,000,000 international short term loan to help Europe liquidate its debts; inflation of commodity prices, which would raise the value of Britain's pound sterling; reduction of England's debt to a 3 per cent basis; lowering of the Bank of England's rediscount rate; and return by England to the gold standard.

It has been learned in Washington that formal diplomatic negotiations between Britain and the United States in connection with war debts are to start as soon as Norman returns to London.

N. Y. LEADERS DIVIDED ON WALKER'S CANDIDACY

M'COOEY SEES A FIGHT AGAINST EX-MAYOR

Question of Holding Election on Nov. 8 Must Be Decided by Courts

New York, Sept. 3 (INS)—While former Mayor James J. Walker's friends in Tammany Hall were paving the way for him to seek vindication at the polls in November, opposition began to line up today to keep him in permanent retirement.

Opinions among lawyers who specialize in political questions were far from unanimous on the question of whether Walker's resignation created a vacancy in the office of mayor which must be filled at a special election in November.

City Clerk Michael J. Cruise, a Tammany district leader, has declared, however, such a vacancy does exist, thus preparing the way for a mayoralty election which Tammany is determined to hold on November 8.

Yet one Democratic leader, John H. McCooey of Brooklyn, threw an element of uncertainty into the Tammany plan by declaring he was not so sure Walker would be the Democratic candidate in that election.

WALKER FACES HURDLES

Independent Democrats and Republicans were moving to unite on a fusion candidate to oppose Walker if he cannot be stopped in the courts from running on a mayoralty ticket in the present "off" year.

Civic organizations that backed Samuel Seabury in his battle against Walker in regard months were lining up to test the legality of a mayoralty election this fall. They hope to prevent the ex-mayor from submitting his case to "the supreme authority, the people."

Walker, now recuperating from the strain of his long battle with Seabury, thus faces three hurdles in his fight for vindication:

He must get the support of the five Democratic leaders of the counties comprising New York city, he must win in court proceedings, and he must be physically fit to run.

Republican leaders are elated in the belief that the bitterness injected into the Albany row will split the Democratic ranks in N. Y., and that many will vote reprisale.

On the other hand Democratic national chiefs have warned Tammany that any reprisal vote would put that organization in even worse light than it is now.

SMITH MENTIONED

Suggestions as to a fusion candidate varied and included:

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Joseph V. McKee, acting mayor since Walker's resignation; Frank L. Polk, undersecretary of state under President Wilson; Bainbridge Colby, also a former Wilson cabinet member, and Martin Conboy, legal adviser to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the Walker removal hearing.

HOOVER SHOWS NEW STRENGTH IN EAST

New York and New Jersey Swing to President in Tide of Ballots

EXCLUSIVE

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 3—The presidential race in the East is becoming a "hoss race," with President Hoover nosing out in front at every turn of the track. At least that is the way it looks from returns in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Boston Evening American in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

Starting with the six New England states and New York in his column at the outset of the poll Hoover first lost New York to Gov. Roosevelt. Then he cut into Roosevelt's lead in New Jersey to where a week ago they were running neck and neck.

RECAPTURES NEW YORK

With new returns this week Hoover has recaptured New York and in addition has swung New Jersey. At the same time he has made inroads into Roosevelt's lead in Pennsylvania. The next report of ballots from the Keystone State may show it in the Hoover column.

The importance of the slant as a campaign battle ground, as revealed by the poll ballots, has been accepted by the Republican campaign management, which this week determined to concentrate its major efforts in the East.

Should Hoover swing Pennsylvania it would give him everything from Maine to Ohio and with the last returns from Michigan and Indiana, good prospects of swinging the two states over.

EAST STRONG FOR HOOVER

It is in the east according to a study of the poll figures that Hoover may look for the bulk of the electoral votes to return him to the White House if he is to be reelected.

There is not the slightest evidence anywhere in the south of Hoover repeating his performance of four years ago by breaking into that normally solid Democratic bulwark. The showing that Roosevelt has made in the west in the poll returns places that region as the section where he may win or lose.

HOOVER DEFEAT IN CALIFORNIA DELIGHTS FOE

Democrats Are Encouraged by Repeal Victory; Junking of Navy Is Rebuked

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Democratic leaders of Massachusetts today surveyed the final figures from the California primaries and found cause in them for rejoicing.

The significant results of the California outcome were these:—

1—The enormous interest in the Democratic party. More than 500,000 votes were cast in the Senatorial contest. That is from two to five times the number of Democratic votes cast in any of the party primaries since the late Senator Phelan. Democrat, represented California in the upper branch of congress.

2—The defeat administered by the Republicans to Senator Samuel M. Shortidge, who sought renomination on the platform of the loyalty with which he had followed President Hoover. Shortridge received 200,000 votes. There were almost 600,000 votes cast for the candidates who opposed him.

3—The nomination of Tallant Tubbs, not because he possesses an odd, Dickens-like name or because he is an unique character, but because he campaigned for outright repeal of prohibition in a Commonwealth supposed to have been dry for protection of its grape industry.

HOOVER REPUDIATION

It is pointed out by the Democrats that Shortridge, campaigning as Mr. Hoover's friend and supporter was rejected in the state which Mr. Hoover has claimed as his home since the return from his long residence in many foreign countries.

It could be further pointed out by them that the victory of Tubbs and defeat of Shortridge also constituted a rejection of the Republican policy of prohibition. Shortridge was content to follow, first, the Republican platform of ambiguity and, secondly, the President's concession of the necessity of a change away from the existing condition. Tubbs, the victor, stood for neither. He is a repealist, like the Democrats in this commonwealth.

California and New England are not unlike in their national problems. Both have long coast lines. National defense, shipping and foreign commerce are utterly essential to both. Hiram Johnson has campaigned vigorously against the wrecking of the U. S. Navy by foreign treaties and his attitude had struck a responsive chord there which sounded against the pro-Hoover candidates.

G. O. P. STRIPS N. E.

"We of New England have more cause for grief than California in this respect," said Chairman Joseph A. Maynard of the Democratic state committee, "because what is left of the U. S. Navy has been concentrated in California, giving them some feeling of security and at least some work for the navy yard employes. We have been dismantled to such an extent that in the once-great and the always-important defenses of Boston there are not enough soldiers left to fire a salute at a military funeral.

"Our navy yards have been denied work. Our first-class naval employes have been threatened of work. Our foreign commerce has been set back a decade. All of this has happened while the Hoover administration has been rushing into silly treaties, declaring moratoriums and leaning toward debt conciliation, enabling the European nations to outfit their armies and expand their navies with American money."

CURLEY HAILED IN INDIANA

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 3 (INS)—Mayor James M. Curley of Boston arrived here today to address the Young Men's Democratic Club at a monster rally at Playland Park, tonight.

Mayor Curley was welcomed by a delegation of prominent Democrats and city officials headed by Mayor W. R. Rinkle. The Mayor was taken to Notre Dame University for luncheon.

Several thousand persons are expected to attend the rally. Among other speakers will be Paul V. McNutt, dean of the Indiana University Law School, Democratic nominee for governor of Indiana, and Fred Van Nuys of Indianapolis, Democratic nominee for United States senator.

FARLEY IN PLEA TO N. Y. YOUTH

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 3 (AP)—James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, charged the members of the Democratic union and the union of young Democratic clubs of New York State today with the responsibility of insuring New York State's 47 electoral votes for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Farley made a strong appeal for funds, some of which he said would be used "to counteract the malicious and despicable propaganda of our opponents by truthful advertising in the open forum of newspaper columns."

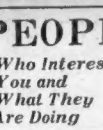
MacArthur to Meet Russian Military Groups in Turkey

Instambul, Turkey, Sept. 3—The report that Gen. Douglas MacArthur, U. S. Army Chief-of-Staff will visit Turkey, Sept. 25 shortly before the arrival of Russian military mission, was regarded as sufficient in diplomatic circles.

Paris dispatches this week declared the French Foreign Office increasingly uneasy over reports the United States contemplates sending a military mission to Russia to establish and trade relations.



Gen. MacArthur

It was also learned Washington has ordered U. S. Ambassador Sherill home for a visit to report on the Turkish political situation.

Senator Watson Predicts End of Second Mortgages

French Lick, Ind., Sept. 3—Senator James E. Watson predicted the end of second mortages on small homes when the home loan bank law becomes entirely effective.

The senior Indiana senator spoke at the national convention of the United States Building and Loan League.

"The truth is that we have never had sufficiently free capital in this country to finance on a proper scale home building," he said. "Under this law works as we think it will the second mortage will soon be a thing of the past."

Senator Watson

Mrs. Hammerstein Sues Step-Son for $100,000

New York, Sept. 3—Mrs. Emma Swift Hammerstein, widow of the opera impresario, Oscar Hammerstein, has sued her step-son, Arthur Hammerstein, for alleged breaking of a contract to support her for life, asking $100,000 damages.

Mrs. Hammerstein

Mrs. Hammerstein was convicted in 1930 of criminal conduct charge in Women's Court, and on Feb. 6, 1930, but the conviction was reversed by the Appelate division on the ground she had been convicted on insufficient evidence.

In the suit, Mrs. Hammerstein said that at that time her step-son had agreed to support her for life if she would leave the country, which she did, following her vindication.

Von Stephani Heads 20,000 German Vets at Meeting

Berlin, Sept. 3—Hohenzollern princes and military leaders of the old regime, headed by Major Franz von Stephani, received a tumultuous welcome at a meeting of 20,000 members of the steel helmet war veterans' organization.

Maj. von Stephani

The rally was held in the Sportpalast, a gigantic hall decorated with the imperial black, white and red but not a single Republican banner.

The multitude shouted, yelled and stamped for several minutes after Maj. Stephani announced that "for the first time in 13 years the Reich and the Prussian government are officially represented at our convention."

FIND BIG FRAUDS IN QUINCY AID

Revealing the discovery of a great many fraudulent and undeserving welfare cases, Mayor Thomas J. McGrath of Quincy today stopped aid to many families pending investigation by him.

In his first announcement, Mayor McGrath indicated that all Quincy aid to the needy had been halted, but he later corrected this, making the following statement to the Boston Evening American:

"The police turned over to me 400 cases which they investigated, and we picked out a great many of those cases in which we found the people could not substantiate their claims for assistance.

"We found there are a great many of them that need further checking up. Therefore, all aid for cases at all dubious have been stopped until we can ascertain whether their claims for assistance are well founded."

Rhode Island Pair Wed in New York

Analysis of Nation-Wide Poll By Hearst Newspapers on Presidential Candidates

Washington, Sept. 3 (US)—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Governor Roosevelt in the nationwide presidential poll of the Boston Evening American, in co-operation with all other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart.

The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

CURTIS JILTED BY PENN. G. O. P.

Philadelphia, Sept. 3 (AP)—The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin today says that the Philadelphia Republican organization has requested that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon be substituted for Vice-President Curtis as the principal speaker at the opening Republican presidential campaign meeting at Allentown Sept. 17.

Vice-President Curtis was agreed upon to make the speech before his acceptance speech was delivered in his home state.

The Republican state committee will meet at Allentown Sept. 17, and State Sen. Samuel W. Sales, Philadelphia, has announced he would offer for adoption a resolution urging immediate repeal of the eighteenth Amendment.

V. F. W. TO PUSH BONUS FIGHT

Sacramento, Calif. Sept. 3 (AP)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States and members of their Women's Auxiliary broke camp today after their 33d national convention. They will meet in Milwaukee, Wis., next year with Admiral Robert E. Coontz, U. S. N., retired, as commander-in-chief. He was unanimously elected yesterday.

Speakers at the closing session emphasized the necessity of maintaining harmony within the organization "because we need a united front with which to combat the forces opposing us."

The organization plans a legislative fight in Washington, D. C., during the next 12 months in the effort to have Congress approve immediate full payment of adjusted service certificates.

Roosevelt Exalts Smith as Reorganizer of N. Y. State

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 3 (INS)—For the first time in his campaign for the presidency, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today publicly referred to his one-time intimate friend and political ally, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

In a brief address shortly before noon at a rally of Young Men's Democratic Clubs of New York State, Roosevelt mentioned Smith's name and praised him for bringing about a reorganization of the state government.

"The man who reorganized the New York State government and placed it on an efficient basis is Alfred E. Smith," Roosevelt said.

A sprinkling of applause went through the audience.

The governor declared that the major political parties must accept responsibility for leadership.

"Our quarrel is not with the millions of fine, upright, clear-thinking men and women who belong, on paper, to the Republican party," he said.

"Our fight is with the Republican leadership which has proved bankrupt, and we invite the Republicans to come with us under a new leadership."

The governor expressed conviction that the American people have made up their minds that it "is time for a new deal in government."

"Everything points to a sweeping victory for Democracy," he said.

"MARY FAITH" is the story of a girl who had to meet the problem of thousands of modern young wives . . . that of keeping a playboy husband from straying too far from the home hearth and heart . . . told as only the author of "The Flapper Wife" could tell it. This is unquestionably Beatrice Burton's greatest story. Begin "Mary Faith" next Tuesday, Sept. 6, in the Boston American.

N. E. WELCOMES ROOSEVELT

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 2 (AP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt will come to Connecticut tonight to deliver his first campaign speech in New England and to meet some of the leaders who fought against his nomination.

The Democratic presidential nominee will speak before 2000 guests at a dinner in honor of National Committeeman Archibald McNeil. Amplifiers will carry his voice to thousands of others who are expected to gather on the pleasure beach outside the banquet hall.

Governor Roosevelt will arrive in Bridgeport at 5:30 p. m., and will speak at about 8 o'clock. His party will include Mrs. Roosevelt, their son James, and National Chairman James A. Farley.

Governor Wilbur L. Cross and Gene Tunney will be in the group that will greet the nominee at Bridgeport.

EARLY RETURN TO HOPEWELL IS PLANNED

Parents Had Expected a Girl and Intended to Call Her Anne for Mother

By DOROTHY DUCAS
By International News Service

Englewood, N. J., Sept. 3 (INS)—The Lindbergh baby still is without a name.

Eighteen days after his birth, the little fellow is called anonymously "Baby," and his parents, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are as far from having decided on a Christian name for him as they were, on Aug. 16.

Then they were very much surprised to be the parents of another little boy it was learned today. They had been so sure the second child would be a girl whom they could call Anne after her mother that they were caught without any suggestions for a boy's name.

"CHARLES" SAD MEMORY

The much-discussed probability of calling the child Charles, the name of the first little boy who was kidnaped and murdered, has never been entertained by the Lindberghs, a close friend said.

"No one can take the other little fellow's place," was the explanation.

As for "Dwight Morrow Lindbergh," after the late father of Mrs. Lindbergh, that too would bring grief to the members of the family who are still mourning the senator's sudden death.

There are so many Charleses in both the Lindbergh and Morrow families that the name is suggested over and over again by hopeful relatives and friends, it seems. And that is the one name the new baby cannot have, because there was and still is, in his parent's memory, another child with that name.

GOING BACK TO HOPEWELL

The new Lindbergh boy looks remarkably like the first child, friends say. He is chubby, happy, healthy, with wisps of darkish hair and infant-blue eyes. Little Charles Lindbergh had dark hair, when he was born, but it grew out and blonde curls took its place.

The new baby probably will look like Col. Lindbergh," a friend said. "Right now he does not look like any member of the family except the first baby, that baby changed to resemble his father before he was a year old, so I presume this one will, too."

Mrs. Lindbergh is well, and the whole family is greatly cheered after its long siege of agony by the normal birth of the fine, normal c. hi. that was said. The Lindberghs are staying with Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, until Mrs. Lindbergh is strong enough to move her household back to Hopewell, N. J.

After Col. Lindbergh's request for privacy for the new child, the Morrow household was not disturbed by calls from strangers, it was said. He is very grateful for the way in which he "has been left alone" by everyone, too.

ACTION ON 206 CASES HELD UP FOR RECHECK

Police Withhold Prosecution of Suspects Until New Probe Is Made

Four suits to recover money paid by the Welfare Department to city aid recipients alleged to have bank accounts were filed today in municipal civil court by Atty. Hale Power, assistant corporation counsel.

The suits are against Michael and Theresa Sullivan of Union Park st., South End, from whom the city seeks to collect $231.95; Frank P. and Theresa Hallahan of Highland st., Roxbury, an action to recover $120; William and Charlotte Troop of Circuit st., Roxbury, to recover $166, and Arthur and Bertha Caimes of Washington st., Roxbury, to recover $156.25.

Attachments for $200 each have been placed against bank accounts in the names of the paired defendants.

The suits were filed as police started a re-check of the 206 "possibly unworthy" cases reported in their investigation of the first batch of 500 cases.

It is expected that some of the "unworthy" cases found in the probe started by the Boston Evening American would be turned over to the welfare board for prosecution but at the meeting of the board yesterday not one case was received from the police.

ACTION DELAYED

It was learned today that a week's exhaustive investigation by the police will be necessary before suspected frauds have been checked sufficiently to warrant criminal prosecution.

Sometime next week the police advisory board, including the commissioner, the superintendent and the deputy superintendent, will go over the list of suspected cases and decide what cases merit official action.

Plans for enlarging the police investigating bureau personnel enough to care for 1000 cases a week are also under way.

The welfare department, which cannot act in fraud cases until they have been turned over by the police, announced it will transfer these cases to the city law department for prosecution as soon as they are received.

FAY TELLS WHY SHE QUIT RUDY

Chicago, Sept. 3 (INS)—Rudy Vallee makes a grand husband—for somebody else.

That was the way Fay Webb Vallee summed up her estimate of her famous crooner-husband today as she paused in Chicago, Reno-bound.

"He's wonderful," admitted the former screen star, "but we just could not get along. In our 14 months of married life we simply didn't agree on many things. Our temperaments clashed.

"Sometimes Rudy's engagements would keep him out until 3 a. m.; then he would have to leave again at 1 p. m., and I'd never even get to see him. What kind of married life is that, I ask you?"

$2 MILLION LEFT BY ROSENWALD

Chicago, Sept. 3 (AP)—Julius Rosenwald, late chairman of the board of Sears Roebuck and Company, left an estate of $32,000,000, it was estimated today by Atty.-Gen. Oscar Carlstrom. A large part of the estate consisted of Sears Roebuck stock. When the will was probated six months ago the estate was estimated "in excess of $20,000,000."

MAN IN ATTACK ON GIRL OF 7

Tying a handkerchief over his eyes, an unidentified man attempted an attack on a seven-year-old girl on Marsh rd. in the Teneau Beach section of Dorchester this afternoon.

The child's screams frightened him away after he had dragged her into a clump of bushes near Rose st., an isolated district.

While he hurried away she ran to her home on Houghton st., and told her father, who notified police of Station 11, Fields Corner.

Several squad cars and motorcycle officers were immediately sent out by Capt. Dickinson to scour the district. The attacker was hatless and wore a white shirt and overalls, according to the little girl.

Market Exchange to Vacate Faneuil Hall for New Site

The Faneuil Hall market district, for more than a century a bartering spot for farmers, is to be abandoned by the Boston Market Gardeners Exchange, it was voted at a meeting of the association in Waltham.

Traffic congestion, lack of space and improper lighting facilities and the absence of adequate market organization were given as the reasons.

Two sites for a new market district were suggested at the meeting —one bounded by South Market, Commercial, Congress sts. and Atlantic ave., valued at $1,200,000, and another bounded by South Market, Commercial and Chatham sts., valued at $1,500,000.

It was considered unusual that the organization should consider leaving a section where there is no rent for another site costing more than a million dollars.

Complaints were registered that 50 per cent of those using the Faneuil Hall area were from other New England states. At the new market these outsiders will be barred.

The farmers will move out of the district as soon as a committee, appointed last night, decides on the location of the new center.

Ambrose Woods, superintendent of markets, expressed great surprise that the market organization had decided to abandon the collecting place in the face of no rent and the fact that the area has recently been extended to take care as best as possible of the increased traffic there.

PRIZE STOCK IS SAVED IN FIRE

Nearly 150 cows, 20 calves and five prize bulls, the latter valued at from $2000 to $5000 each, were rescued today during a fire that destroyed a two-story cow barn at Green Lodge Gardens off Canton st., Westwood, owned by E. C. Codman.

The fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, threatened six other large buildings on the millionaire's estate, and help in fighting the flames was called from Dedham.

Harry La Porte, an employe of the estate, discovered the fire. He, with eight other employes, freed from their stanchions 80 bloodet Guernsey cows and the five bulls in this barn, turning them out into a pasture, and then did the same thing with 70 other cows and the 20 calves in an adjoining barn.

256 ARRESTED ON COMMON

Capt. Jeremiah Sullivan's campaign to clean up Boston Common has resulted in 256 arrests for drunkenness in the last six weeks, it was learned today in municipal court when the six new victims were arraigned.

Special Officers McInerney and Casick, assigned to the cleanup, appeared before John Lee. Lawrence Lynch and Tom Foley today, and the trio were sent to Deer Island for 40 days in default of $20 fines. This is the second time these men have worked out their fines since the cleanup began.

Thomas Kenney, George Harrison and William Conti were also sentenced to 40 days in the House of Correction.

ROWLEY SNUBS FOX HUNTERS

Concord, N. H., Sept. 3 (AP)—Dr. Francis H. Rowley, president of the Massachusetts Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, announced as speaker for the annual meeting of the New Hampshire Fox Hunters Association Monday, has declined to speak.

In a letter to association officials Dr. Rowley said he had learned after accepting the invitation that the association was to lead foxes, raccoons and rabbits through the wood for their hunts. On the association program is listed a trial for hounds following a scent of raccoons and foxes through brush.

1 DEAD, 1 DYING IN PLANE CRASH

An airplane crash that caused the death of Frank Starbel, 25, at Muller airport, Revere, may yet bring death to his student pilot, doctors at Chelsea Memorial Hospital reported today.

Starbel, although he climbed unaided from the wrecked machine yesterday, died soon after at Whidden Memorial Hospital, Everett. He lived in School st., Everett.

The student, William Beck, of Clematis rd., Medford, suffered a fracture of the skull and other injuries. His name is on the danger list.

FALL KILLS BOY HITCH-HIKER

A Fall River hitch hiker, who boarded a Boston-bound truck in New Rochelle, N. Y., was killed today in Waltham when the truck hit a bump and threw him to the road.

The victim, Henry Silva, 17, of Albert st., and Theodore Sabik, 17, of Denver st., both of Fall River, were seated on the tailboard of the truck, driven by Harold Norwood, of Shepard st., Lynn, riding through Waverly Oaks st., Waltham, when the accident happened.

Sabik managed to stay on the truck but Silva was thrown off and landed on his head.

Amherst Policeman Accused of Theft

AMNESIA GIRL CLUE HUNTED

The girl, known as "Betty Kane Parker," suffering from amnesia at Boston Psycopathic Hospital, is still a mystery to the hospital officials and to police.

Efforts to identify her had failed up to late this afternoon. Photographs have been sent to Buffalo, N. Y., police in an effort to identify her as Miss Marian Stangl of that city, who disappeared two weeks ago.

According to hospital officials, the girl is not trying to hide her identity but has a definite failure of memory.

HUNT POET WHO DEFAULTS BAIL

A warrant for the arrest of Joseph Hilton Smythe of Newton, self-styled "Bohemian Poet", was issued today in municipal court after he defaulted an appearance on larceny charges.

Smythe, ten years ago a member of the gay artistic colony on Beacon Hill, which made the "Seven Arts Club" their rendezvous, was arrested yesterday in Fairhaven on similar charges.

After obtaining bail in New Bedford district court, he was served with a fugitive warrant from Boston police. Bail was also provided on this arrest.

Today, Judge Adlow waited until the morning's court business was completed before ordering Clerk James G. Millwood to issue the default warrant.

Vegetables to Quit 'Cradle of Liberty' for $1,500,000 Crib

TRADITION GETS A JOLT WHEN THIS PASSES OUT

After more than a century, Boston's vegetable business has outgrown "The Cradle of Liberty"—Faneuil Hall. The Market Garden Association has voted to desert the historic spot, shrine for tourists from every high spot on earth and the crossroads of civilization almost since Boston began. A new market will be established on a $1,500,000 site on the dealers will then pay rent—although the stalls now are rent-free.

WHEN SHALL WE THREE MEET AGAIN?

They hate to see the old market pass. Officer Phelan has been assigned there five years. William J. Graham of Burlington has been a market man there for 38 years, and George Russell of Woburn for 48 years. The latter two voted against the change—but in vain. (Staff photos.)

REVIVER OF 'FOLLIES' GETS ADVICE FREE

By GILBERT SELDES

My dear Mr. Blumenthal: The papers have carried reports that you are going to take over and perpetuate the Ziegfeld Follies. It is a grand idea and I hope that, for once, theatrical news is not going to be subject to postponement, revision and final forgetfulness. You have financed bigger operations in the field of amusement than this, but I doubt whether you have ever done anything which can give more profound satisfaction to others as well as to yourself. You have probably been told that the Follies are a great American institution and that the name of their founder should be perpetuated; perhaps the serious side has been a little over-emphasized —naturally, since the emotion of Florenz Ziegfeld's friends is great. But you cannot forget that the first thing Ziegfeld always attempted was to give a good show. He didn't always succeed—the material may have been lacking or he may have had one of his few lapses of judgment; his average remained high. People who have produced four shows have counted as many failures as he who produced perhaps 40.

Best Features

You might start out not with an entirely new Follies, but with a composite Follies, picking out celebrated numbers from all the others. I don't mean that you should try to find someone to do Bert Williams' stuff or attempt to put over the dances and comedy of 30 years ago. (A little of that, yes; for the sake of sentiment and humor; but not a whole show of dead acts.) Certain stunts, certain ideas of production are either as good now as they ever were—and they were good—or have been so long forgotten that they will seem fresh. Some of the music would strike us as delightful; and the fun which is less satirical than our current offerings would give us a pleasant sensation—even if it were the sensation of growing old.

Public Taste

The Follies were really an exemplar of American taste. They were once considered naughty and they were later considered too discreet—not undressed enough for the vulgarized taste of a later era. You might follow that through, picking out bits which offended in 1910 and comparing them with bits which failed to offend in 1927. Or you might choose only what was and is entertaining. It would hardly be worth your while to do a sentimental orgy of regret over the past; even the past does not ask that of us. It wants, I suppose, to be taken on its merits.

You know, probably, that Ziegfeld's weakness was in relation to comedy. He made up for it by hiring people who could tell a good comedian from a bad one, and when they worked well his shows were all the better. But I do not think you are compelled to incorporate his weaknesses as well as his merits. He thought that by throwing upon the stage a series of beautiful pictures—in setting and costume and in the lovely forms and faces of his girls—he was creating an entirely satisfactory show. I don't think he ever knew how much music and comedy meant in his total success.

The Master

One thing he knew better than anyone else in America—or, for that matter ,in Europe: the way to run a show. It was a smooth performance; the elements were properly put together; it was never amateurish or awkward. Everything worked and everything was in its right place. A Ziegfeld show was typically American because it ran with machine-like accuracy; all the individuality needed was left free to show itself; all the excesses were thrown away.

You know that taste in musical shows has changed, and it would be unmanly to weep over it, because some of the changes have been for the better and some you can throw into the East River to the water rats. Ziegfeld himself yielded to change at times, not always successfully, but if you plant your feet where he stood in, say, 1930, and announce that you will never move from that spot you will not be exactly true to his memory. With all his strange ideas and his confident faith in himself he was a showman, learning from the shows around him; he was, in fact, a living man, which means a man who changed. Your job is to select and preserve what was essential in his way of making musical shows and to go on from there. It's not an easy job; but it is a darned good one.

Michael Ryan, candidate for the Democratic nomination for legislature in Ward 17, Dorchester, is campaigning for a reduction of telephone, gas and electric light rates.

GAS RATE CUT SOUGHT

A committee of Hyde Park residents today notified Acting Mayor Edward M. Gallagher that early next week they will present a petition seeking his aid in their fight for reduced gas rates.

SULLIVAN WINS AID

Henry J. Sullivan of South Boston, candidate for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state, has received numerous promises of support from Springfield residents whose acquaintance he made while a student at the Redemptorist Fathers' preparatory college.

SECRET SESSIONS ATTACKED

At rallies last night in Roxbury and East Boston, Edward M. Sullivan, candidate for governor's council, again called on Governor Ely and the council to repeal Rule II of the rules and orders of the governor's council which provides for secret sessions.

CLUB BACKS DR. LYONS

The Colmar Club of East Boston has endorsed the candidacy of Dr. Joseph V. Lyons for the Democratic nomination for sheriff of Suffolk County.

LABOR, CHURCH TOGETHER ON COMMON

For the first time the Boston Central Labor Union and the Greater Boston Federation of Churches will combine for a big meeting on Boston Common to commemorate Labor Day. Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at the Parkman bandstand representatives of the C. L. U. of the Catholic Church, of Jewish people, and of the Protestant Churches, will gather for service.

The Rev. George P. O'Connor will speak for his church and people. Father O'Connor is well known as rector of St. Mary's, Dedham, and as former head of the Catholic Charitable Bureau. Rabbi Beryl D. Cohan, assistant to Rabbi Harry Levi of Temple Israel, is also on the program. Mr. Robert Dexter who heads the social service department of the American Unitarian Association will preside and introduce the various speakers.

The Boston Central Labor Union will be represented among the speakers by its president, J. Arthur Moriarty. The Rev. Kenneth MacArthur, secretary for the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, may be called on as one well able to speak for labor in rural districts. Music is to be furnished by the Salvation Army band.

DENMARK HALTS FLYING FAMILY

Copenhagen, Sept. 3 (INS)—Apparently dashing his hopes of being history's first father to take his family across the Atlantic by airplane, the Danish government today instructed Greenland authorities to supply no gasoline to Col. George Hutchinson of Baltimore, who arrived at Godthaab, Greenland, last night from Labrador.

Ashort while after word was received of the arrival of Col. Hutchinson's amphibian plane at Godthaab, Knud Oldendow, the government's representative there, was instructed to inform him that there was no gasoline in Greenland except that belonging to the government.

There were reports that Hutchinson's plane might be confiscated on the grounds he made a landing in Greenland without official consent.

This possibility, coupled with formal instructions that no gasoline be delivered to him, made it appear likely that the Baltimore adventurer, his wife, two small daughters and crew of four would be sent to the United States aboard a steamship by way of Copenhagen.

EDW. H. LOWELL, BANKER, DIES

Edward H. Lowell, president of the Chelsea Trust Co., and a member of the Chelsea School Committee for 32 years, died today at Massachusetts Memorial Hospital after an illness since last spring. He was 72 years old.

For 35 years he had been connected with various banks in Chelsea, and until his long illness he had never missed a meeting of he school board during his long tenure of office.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edna Lowell, and two daughters, Miss Ruth Lowell, who lives at home in Forsyth st., Chelsea, and Mrs. Arthur Dodge of Arlington.

Chinese Defy Japs as Boycott Grows

Shanghai, Sept. 3 (INS)—Despite threats of Japanese reprisals, the anti-Japanese boycott waged by Chinese grew more intense here today.

Christian Science to Deal With "Man"

"Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 4.

The golden text is: "Now, O Lord, Thou art our Father; we are the clay, and Thou our potter; and we all are the work of Thy hand" (Isaiah 64:8).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and He that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not; for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine . . . Even every one that is called by my name: for I have created him for my glory, I have formed him; yea, I have made him" (Isaiah 43:1,7).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man is the expression of God's being. If there ever was a moment when man did not express God, and consequently a time when Deity was unexpressed—that is, without entity . . . The relations of God and man, divine principle and idea, are indestructible in Science; and Science knows no lapse from nor return to harmony, but holds the divine order or spiritual law in which God and all that He creates are perfect and eternal, to have remained unchanged in its eternal history" (p. 470).

John Herman Loud Returns to Park St.

As a sign of the approach of the coming church season 1932-33 the organist, John Herman Loud, will be in his seat at the organ of Park Street Church tomorrow. He is one of the outstanding organists of Boston and of New England, and many are attracted to Park Street Church to hear his music.

Dr. Conrad will not be back until the following Sunday, when activities will proceed in the regular manner. Tomorrow there will come to the pulpit the Rev. Albert Witiver, Jr., from Canadensis, Penn.

Dr. Johnson Will Be at Dudley St. Church

A Labor Day sermon will be preached tomorrow morning at the Dudley Street Baptist Church, Roxbury, by the well known Baptist minister the Rev. Herbert Johnson. He will preach both morning and evening.

His will give his sentiments about labor and capital in a definite and considerable manner, and he invites all his friends to be present.

Dr. Arthur T. Brooks, who has been spending a vacation in Norway, Sweden and [illegible] people of Europe, will return and be in his pulpit Sept. 11. There will be a great homecoming welcome.

Preach On Boston Common

The Rev. George H. Driver, of the Village Congregational Church, will have charge of services tomorrow afternoon for the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, 2:45, on the Mall.

Children of China and Friendship Gifts

Children of Boston and New England will be asked to get busy making gifts which will eventually go to Chinese children as goodwill offerings between that ancient land and the United States. The Federal Council of Churches, through department of international goodwill, is preparing to ship thousands of books, just as it sent dolls to Japan, bags to Mexico and treasure boxes to the Philippine Islands.

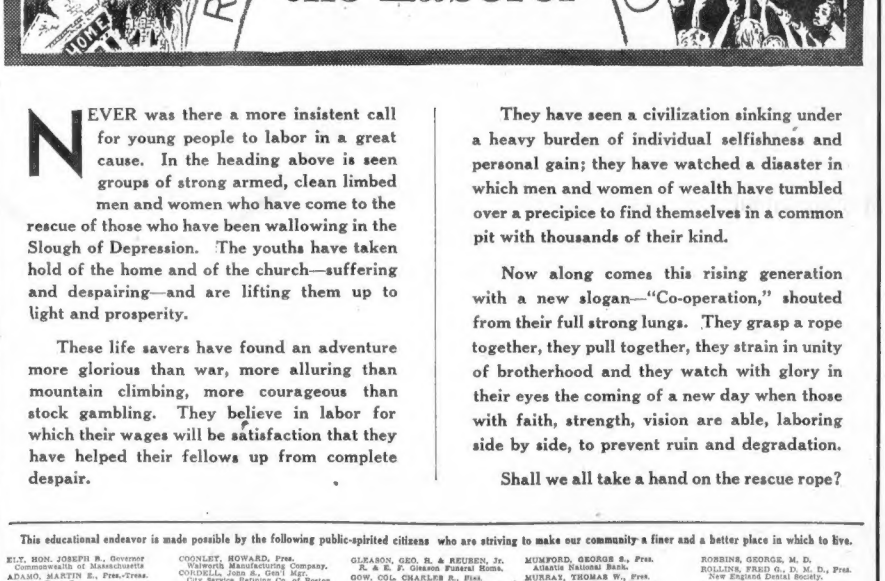
The Department of Education of the Republic of China has recently informed the Committee on World Friendship Among Children that it will be glad to co-operate in a friendship project by American children for those of China and that it is prepared to receive and distribute to the schools the friendship symbols.

The Committee is therefore announcing the fourth friendship project and invites co-operation by children (and their leaders) in church and day schools and by young people in various organizations and societies.

Y. W. C. A. Program for September

Gay times are mixed with sober utility at the Boston Y. W. Plans for September include many kinds of outings, lectures, and various kinds of training classes. There is September 3—"Labor Day week end Party"; September 6—Registration for adult education classes; September 8—Swiss Club; September 13—Board meeting; September 14—Lecture by Miss A. A. Eliot. There is roller skating, bowling, closing of Camp Winnecumnet, free demonstration of office machines, etc. An opening banquet comes on September 20.

Girls who believe they can enjoy themselves and gain something worthwhile are cordially invited to come to headquarters, 140 Clarendon st., and register.



NEVER was there a more insistent call for young people to labor in a great cause. In the heading above is seen groups of strong armed, clean limbed men and women who have come to the rescue of those who have been wallowing in the Slough of Depression. The youths have taken hold of the home and of the church—suffering and despairing—and are lifting them up to light and prosperity.

These life savers have found an adventure more glorious than war, more alluring than mountain climbing, more courageous than stock gambling. They believe in labor for which their wages will be satisfaction that they have helped their fellows up from complete despair.

They have seen a civilization sinking under a heavy burden of individual selfishness and personal gain; they have watched a disaster in which men and women of wealth have tumbled over a precipice to find themselves in a common pit with thousands of their kind.

Now along comes this rising generation with a new slogan—"Co-operation," shouted from their full strong lungs. They grasp a rope together, they pull together, they strain in unity of brotherhood and they watch with glory in their eyes the coming of a new day when those with faith, strength, vision are able, laboring side by side, to prevent ruin and degradation.

Shall we all take a hand on the rescue rope?

This educational endeavor is made possible by the following public-spirited citizens who are striving to make our community a finer and a better place in which to live.

SUSPECT HELD IN SWINDLE OF ATTORNEYS

Nipping at its start what police declare to have been a huge swindle planned against prominent Boston lawyers, Inspectors George Augusta and Joseph Decker arrested today a man giving his name as G. Warren Fowler, 35, of Syracuse, N. Y.

The arrest was made on a municipal court warrant charging Fowler specifically with larceny of $365 from Atty. Devereaux B. Barker, of Barker, Davison & Shattuck, 15 State st.

Police believe the name given by the man under arrest to be false and have discovered there is a Warren Fowler, a professor of physics at Syracuse University, who declares he does not know any other man of that name. The Fowler under arrest claims to have attended Syracuse.

CAME FROM WORCESTER

According to police and to private detectives hired by some of the lawyers whom he is declared to have marked for victims, Fowler came here from Hartford and Worcester, where he had stopped at the best hotels, and took a room at a leading Boston hostelry.

Subsequently he visited various leading law firms in Boston, among them Ropes, Gray, Boyden & Perkins at 30 Federal st.; Herrick, Smith, Donald & Farley at 1 Federal st.; Gaston, Snow, Saltonstall & Hunt, 82 Devonshire st., and Phipps, Durgin & Cook, 75 Federal st.

To a partner in each of these firm, Fowler is alleged to have said that he wished drawn up a contract and articles of agreement for a corporation to be formed in Boston as a subsidiary to a New York firm dealing in carborundum and a metal similar to, but better than, stainless steel.

PRESENTS NEAT CARD

He presented a neatly-engraved card with the name G. Warren Fowler, consulting engineer, State Tower Building, Syracuse, N. Y., telephone 2-1744. Police have found that he has no office in that building.

All the firms subsequently sent him bills for the services, and later Fowler is alleged to have visited the same lawyers and asked each for a "temporary loan" of $365 to take up a quick offer of a quantity of carborundum and steel waste at a bargain.

His partners were traveling and could not be reached, he said, and he himself had spent $2600 in cash since arriving in Boston.

BAY STATE FIRST IN SHOE TRADE

Washington, Sept. 3 (AP)—Massachusetts was reported today by the commerce department as maintaining its leadership in the domestic boot and shoe industry during the first six months of this year.

The Bay State output of 36,843,207 pairs constituted 24.5 per cent of the total production in the six months period. New York was second with 31,544,659 pairs, or 21 per cent of the total output. Other important shoe producing states were Missouri with 17,180,295 pairs; Illinois 11,232,848 pairs; New Hampshire, 10,703,117 pairs; Maine, 9,359,725 pairs; Pennsylvania, 7,197,851 pairs; Wisconsin, 6,846,466, and Ohio, 5,333,758.

Gillette Attorneys Battle $275,000 Fee

Arguments were made today before Judge Lummus in Supreme Court on a motion to confirm the objection of the Gillette Safety Razor Co. to a report of Judge William M. Prest, as master, fixing fees and expenses for plaintiff counsel in the recent $21,000,000 suit of minority stockholders against directors of the old company. Judge Prest allowed $275,000 as counsel fees and $32,800 for counsel's expenses.

James C. A. Brown Dies at Son's Home

James C. A. Brown of Worcester, recently retired as clerk-in-charge of the railway mail service between Boston and Albany, died today at the home of his son, Archibald, in Jamaica Plain.

Two sons, Archibald and Crawford of Wakefield, survive. He will be buried from the home of his sister-in-law, 16 Summer st., Everett, Monday.

CARTER DEATH LAID TO DRIVER

Responsibility for the death of his employer, Jane G. Avery Carter, wealthy Needham woman who was fatally injured in an automobile accident in Washington st., Wellesley, was placed today on the shoulders of Richard Frye, 60, her chauffeur and employe for many years.

The woman died in Newton Hospital on Aug. 14, the day after the automobile struck a tree.

In his report on the inquest, Judge E. Dwight Fullerton of Dedham district court said:

"The only inference which can be drawn from all the evidence is that the chauffeur momentarily lapsed into inattention, and during this moment of lapse permitted the car to swerve slightly off its course, resulting in the collision."

Church Window 'Photos' Eclipse

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 3 (AP)—A five-inch image of a partial phase of the solar eclipse was found today on a valuable stained glass window of the Bethany Congregational Church here.

The window was in direct line with the eclipsed sun. What caused the glass to record the impression of the light was not known.

IDENTIFY MAN FOUND IN RIVER

Acoat and straw hat on the bank led to discovery of the body of a South End man today in Charles river, opposite Technology.

After the body was several hours in Northern Mortuary, Mrs. Emily W. Murphy of Gray st., South End, identified it as one of her lodgers, William S. Bryan, 72, an unemployed painter.

Metropolitan police recovered the body after Patrolman William McAuley of the Cambridge police had noticed the hat and coat, peared into the river and saw the body.

Attacks Hurley on Religious Appeal

A demand that President Hoover "stop permitting men on the federal payroll from appealing to religious prejudice in their vain efforts to re-elect you" was sent to the White House today by Frank J. Finneran, president of the Massachusetts Democratic Club.

Finneran charged that Secretary of War Hurley is delivering "nauseating speeches appealing to religious prejudice."

DIVORCEE HELD FOR SLAYING IN MAINE

Bangor, Me., Sept. 3—Charged with the murder of John Marshall, 30, a married man, Mrs. Marjorie Buffam, 28-year-old divorcee and beauty parlor operator, was arraigned here today.

Arraigned before Judge John T. Quinn, Mrs. Buffam pleaded not guilty to the murder charge and was held without bail for Tuesday's session of the grand jury. She was removed to Bangor jail.

Marshall was shot early today in a cottage on Lake Sebasticook, near Newport, where he and Mrs. Buffam had rented previously.

The woman, who operates a beauty shop, Ira Cross, told authorities she and Marshall had visited the cottage only before and then delivered a quantity of liquor at Pittsfield. She said Marshall was a bootlegger.

They returned to the cottage last night and were preparing to start for Millinocket when she dropped a cigarette and Marshall leaned to pick it up. His revolver, she said, was accidentally discharged then, although she claimed she did not hear it.

Marshall owned the camp and had been visited there recently by his wife and two children.

11 INJURED IN SUBWAY CRASH

Hanson st., South End, contusions of head, shoulder and chest, possible internal injuries.

CANNON, Mrs. Alice, 46, 29 Sterling st., Roxbury, concussion of brain, lacerated chin.

WHITEHEAD, Mrs. Laura, 57, 29 Sterling st., Roxbury, cut lips and nose.

DUTCHAK, Alex, 37, 216 Chamber st., West End, contusions both knees.

CANDOLORA, Joseph, 45, 117 Adams st., Malden, back strain.

GODFREY, Jerry J., 19, 62 Upham st., Mattapan, contusion of back and right ribs.

CARBERRY, James, 45, 19 Milford st., South End, four teeth knocked out.

SWEENEY, John A., 48, 67 Ferrin st., Charlestown; lacerations head and chin.

ONE ADDED VICTIM

In addition to those hurt in the crash, Elizabeth Gallagher of Green st., Brookline, was injured when she slighted from a Reservoir-Bound car that was blocked behind those concerned in the accident and fell on the roadbed while walking to the Boylston st. station. She suffered an injury to her left leg and was taken to the Haymarket Relief Station.

But for the presence of mind of an identified fireman who was a passenger on the City Point car, the crash might have had more serious results. According to Healey, the fireman was seated in the rear of the stalled car and saw the Dudley st. car approaching. He shouted, "Wash out!" and those in the rear of the City Point car ran forward.

THE MEN IN CHARGE

According to Elevated officials, the Dudley st. car was operated by John Carey, 168 Train st., Dorchester, as motorman, and John Urban, 59 Edson st., Dorchester, as conductor.

Louis Alward of 16 Copeland st., Roxbury, was the motorman of the City Point car. Ira McLeod of 57 Wrenham st., Dorchester, was the conductor.

Believe Springfield Lottery Ring Case

Hartford, Ct., Sept. 3 (INS)—Headquarters of a lottery ring, four members of which have been arrested and nearly 10,000 tickets seized, was either in Springfield, Mass., or in New Haven, State police revealed today.

Although the arrests and the seizures were made in different parts of the State, all were members of "the same ring," State police said. In Wethersfield, police seized 4000 tickets and arrested two men.

Lawrence Drops 50 Families From Dole

Lawrence, Sept. 3 (AP)—City charity officials today said that 580 families had been taken off the welfare list in this city in the past seven weeks. Most of the recipients were removed at their own request because they had found other means of support, officials said.

Lone Cow Puts on a One Lady Rodeo and Ties Up Traffic

One cow is a bit too few to make a first-class rodeo, but a recalcitrant Bossie did her best today at Northampton and Albany sts., South End, snarling up motor and trolley traffic for 15 minutes.

The cow escaped from a truck, which held no attraction for a bovine anyway, with all kinds of fearful destinations possible—including the place where they bump unsuspecting cattle on the skulls with heavy bolos.

Her one thought was to get away from it all after she struck the pavement, but a number of young men gave chase. The pursuit led around and around the square, with many amateur matadors and picadors engaged and with the cow giving an amazing exhibition of broken-field running.

Eventually, however, Bossie was overcome by the weight of numbers, was captured and hoisted back into the truck and again tied up.

MALDEN POLICE NEED SHERLOCK

It looks as if the Malden police department will be forced to send for Sherlock Holmes.

Another baffling mystery confronts them.

When Lieut. Thomas W. Murray, in charge of police headquarters at night, completed his tour of duty early today, he found his new automobile in the police garage, back of police headquarters, smeared with paint remover. The entire car will have to be repainted.

Recent thefts from police headquarters in Malden include a radio motorcycle and bags of sugar, seized in raids. Officials believe all are "inside" jobs.

U. S. HIT BY NEW ITALIAN TARIFF

Rome, Sept. 3 (AP)—Heavy tariff increases published today virtually shut out of Italy frozen beef from the Argentine, and United States exports of lard, fatbacks and dried fruits.

The duty on frozen beef is raised from 27.50 lire per quintal to 140 lire for Argentina, which has most-favored-nation treatment. The object of the increases is to protect and encourage home industry.

The duty on lard is raised from 29.40 lire to 200 lire per quintal, and on fatbacks from 44 to 250. Last year the United States sent 10,000 quintals of lard and fatbacks to Italy.

'DOLE BABY'S' DEATH PROBED

Springfield, Sept. 3—Mayor Winter today ordered a thorough investigation of all charges concerning the death from malnutrition of the month-old baby whose body was wheeled to the welfare board office yesterday by its penniless father.

"Born on the town" a month ago in the almshouse hospital, Valdja Stefanowicz was "buried by the town" today while her father's accusation that she was "killed by the town" brought indignant denials from the welfare department.

Paul Stefanowicz, who left the body of his baby on a counter in the City Hall welfare department, claims he asked the department to have a doctor attend her, but his claim is denied by Mrs. Mary Coffey, the department visitor.

She said that on her last visit to the Stefanowicz home, the father himself appeared ill and she asked him if he didn't want a doctor and he said he did not.

Madden said that for three years Stefanowicz has been receiving the equivalent of $18 a week in food, fuel and cash and that this was as much as he would have earned if he had been employed outside.

Stairs Fall Fatal

Barre, Vt., Sept. 3—Angus A. Smith, 73, of Montreal, died at the City Hospital from a fall down a flight of stairs.

Boy Killed by Poison 'Candy'

A poison tablet which he found in the yard of his home and ate in the belief it was lemon candy today caused the death of John Ferris, Jr., six, of 268 E st., South Boston.

The boy, one of six children, was stricken with pains at supper last night and told his mother, Mrs. Catherine Ferris, of eating a "lemon drop." She rushed him to City Hospital, where he died this morning.

Doctors were not sure what poison caused the lad's death. An autopsy was ordered.

Travers to Talk on Selling by Radio

"Making Sales on the Air" will be the topic of Linus Travers, director of commercial production for the Yankee Network at a luncheon of the Boston Advertising Club, Sept. 15, at Hotel Statler.

John Shepard, 3d, will be in charge of the program, which will include entertainment by a score of radio artists.

TONGUE SLIT IN BARBER BATTLE

Close shaves were the orders of the day in the barber shop of David Alpert, Washington st., South End, and as a result Bennett Jacobs, boss of a rival shop, is at Haymarket Relief Hospital having his tongue and right hand stitched.

Alpert and Jacobs, each clutching the other's throat, hurtled through the window of the former's shop onto the sidewalk. They retained respective grips until pried apart by passersby.

Alpert told Capt. Jeremiah Gallivan of LaGrange st. station that he had hired Jacobs' best barber for the holiday rush of trade, and that Jacobs came into his shop in argue on a question of business ethics.

Then, said Alpert, without warning Jacobs grabbed him by the throat.

Phone In News Tips, Liberty 4000, and Win $50 in Weekly Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American is presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be offered for news tips telephoned in to the American News-Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to the people of Greater Boston and adjacent cities has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. The first tip on a story wins. Do not send in minor stories that everyone sees. Good exclusive pictures are wanted, too.

MY DEARS: THIS IS GOING TO BE AN INVITATION to the bridge Olympiads, which will be held in dear old Boston on October 4 for the benefit of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children . . . you know simply everyone loves to aid this popular charity and its affairs always carry such a swanky patroness list . . . which no one will deny is a BIG help.

Mrs. John S. Lawrence and Mrs. Bernard C. Weld met the other members of the committee yesterday to discuss further plans for the event, which will take the form of a bridge tournament, the first annual bridge tournament, and we think it is a very bright idea . . . imagine playing your favorite contract and assisting your favorite charity at the same time.

* * *

The Imperial ballroom of the Hotel Statler will be the festive scene of the tourney, and all of the sharks, and those not so sharky but still darned good, will turn out for this social event of the month.

MRS. JOHN S. LAWRENCE

You . . . and that means everyone who is not color blind . . . are to gather in the foyer at 8 p. m. in your best bib and tucker . . . let us be gay! . . . to compete for the splendid trophy and prizes which will be offered, and the committee is planning to have a special dinner menu available at one dollar a plate for those who wish to dine at the Statler before the big event.

Clubs to Send Teams

THERE WILL BE PLENTY OF PRIZES FOR THE various sectors which will be represented. All of the clubs will send members, among them the Boston Whist Club, Boston Chess Club, Boston Art Club, Algonquin Club and the University Club, as well as the out-of-towners.

* * *

ANOTHER GRAND FEATURE which is worth the price of admission, almost, is free parking at the Motor Mart Garage . . . can you tell us how you could spend a two-dollar bill for an evening's enjoyment and get so much for your money . . . and, incidentally, you won't be "touched" for that two-spot to aid the M. S. P. C. C. later.

Three Sessions

THERE WILL BE THREE such evenings . . . the cost for the three $3 . . . and the next dates are Tuesdays, October 11 and 18.

* * *

ALL THE BEST-KNOWN teachers around will be in attendance to answer questions . . . a beautiful Junior League girls will conduct you to your table, and provision has been made to care for those who wish to make up their own tables for contract, auction or whist.

* * *

SO BRUSH UP ON YOUR game during the next four weeks, and come along to try your luck . . . we still think bridge a game of luck as we win when we hold the cards and do not when we don't . . . The Chinese have a name for it.

We will be seeing you!

Debut at Dance

ANOTHER DEBUT INVITATION was received today . . . they are coming in thick and fast . . . Lucy Rowditch Stone, daughter of the Malcolm Stones of Milton, will be presented at a house-dance on Saturday, October 1, at their lovely home in Readville. This will be an invitation affair . . . no ribble-rabble.

AN AMUSING EVENT which takes place on the evening of Labor Day on the Cape is the costume party of 1930 at the Wianno Club. The Channing Wells, Mrs. Clare H. Draper, and other members of this popular summer colony will appear in their versions of original costumes of 20 years from the total eclipse . . . and prizes will be offered for the most unique.

AS SOMEONE IS ALWAYS reminding us . . . life in the raw is never mild . . .! Perhaps we will be living in the raw in 1950; anyhow we imagine there will be some wild ideas portrayed at this dance. We can only hope that time will not so change us that we will go back to tattooing for our exterior decoration.

ALICE DENORMANDIE, daughter of the Robert L. DeNormandies of Lincoln, has selected January, the cold, cold month, for her wedding to Dr. Oliver Cope of the Massachusetts General Hospital, and son of Mrs. William Cope of Philadelphia. Alice and her sisters, one of whom, Ellen, came out last year, were of the most popular of their seasons and everyone is delighted at the news of Alice's engagement. She is tickled to death herself, so they say . . . which is as it should be.

Simplicity in New Fashions

By HELEN WILLS MOODY

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

Paris, Sept. 3—Simplicity was the keynote of Jane Regny's winter showing.

The house also subscribes to the lower waistline, which was noticeable in many of the models of Paris.

Favorite colors were red, in different shades, brown, and gray. A number of the models had gold on them and there was a marked tendency toward more trimming.

Fabrics used were rough crepe silk, wool plaids, and a rough wool called "Nordic." The latter was especially attractive in coats. There was a lighter weight soft wool for dresses. For evening wear there was the ever-present crinkly velvet, which seems to have swept the formal dress field. Sports clothes were featured.

Soft rose was the color chosen for a charming wool outfit. Mole fur, dyed in match, formed the collar. The fur ran down the sleeves. In the back was a cape effect running to the sleeves. A simple one-piece dress went with this jacket. It was plain save for buttons at the hip and two buttons at the slit which came down from the high round and collarless neck. The sleeves were cut into points just above the elbow.

A useful gray-black tweed three-quarter-length coat had a flat black fur collar in the shape of a cape. Leopard fur was used for a cape-let, which reached just below the shoulder. With the capelet was worn a black wool dress.

A ruby red dress, not long, with sleeves full just above the elbow, had one pale blue single-petaled flower at the V of the neck. This dress was for late afternoon. It could carry over as an informal dinner dress.

There was a pretty ensemble in gray. The wool coat had sleeves cut with a point above the elbow and a slightly dropped collar. Above this was a blue fox collar. The dress was of very crinkly crepe with a moderate fullness at the front of the skirt. At the V of the neck was a flat red flower.

A pale orchid pink dress had a deep decolletage and a brick red sash which hung all the way to the floor from the waist in back. The color combination was unusual.

Turk Princess Sails to Study N. Y. Press

HOLIDAY HORSE SHOW TO INAUGURATE MYOPIA CLUB HUNT

Polo Match on Program for Opening

On Labor Day, the Myopia Hunt Club will hold its annual Horse Show, which inaugurates the hunting season for this famous club. On the following day the first official hunt will set forth to hounds with all the color which Myopia huntsmen, led by the M. F. H. Maj. James W. Appleton, always exhibit.

The show, which is to be held on the Myopia Schooling Field, follows that at Dublin, which takes place today, and many enthusiasts attending will bring their visiting friends to the Myopia show.

The Monday event opens with the junior riders at 9:30 a. m. and in all there will be 13 classes shown. The show is a notable one because of the number of well known society equestrians who are exhibiting. Entries in the junior events have been received from the children of Mrs. Dudley Pickman, Jr., and Miss Nancy Cochrane and Rudsie Cochrane, Miss Phyllis Tuckerman, Miss Sally White, Manchester; Miss Jean S. Sears, Sumner Pingree, John Good, Russell Burrage, Jr.; Miss Geraldine Mandell, Miss Jenny McKean, A. F. Sortwell, Neil W. Rice, Francis B. Chalifoux, and his sister, Miss Betsy and John K. Howard.

In other classes are Maj. G. S. Patton, Jr.; Mr. James W. Pierce, Maj. Townsend Heard, Mr. Augustus F. Goodwin, Mr. George C. Clements, Mr. William Stuart Forbes, Miss Alice Thorndike, Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske, Mrs. Gordon C. Prince, Mrs. Gilbert L. Steward, Mrs. Paul Moore, Miss Martha M. Proctor and Mrs. Charles F. Ayer.

At the conclusion of the show, the 26th in succession, a polo match will be played by the Myopia and Danvers teams.

Society Notes

Mrs. William Henry Young and her two grandchildren Ruth and Knowlton Young, who are in New York after making several visits to friends along the North Shore, expect to return north again on September 20th, when Knowlton enters St. Marks School, at Southborough.

Smart Styles for Evening

By DOROTHY ROE

New York, Sept. 3—The formal or semiformal costume for fall has a few distinct 1932 wrinkles.

The informal dinner dress, for instance, usually in velvet, has a high neckline, often extended well out on the shoulders, and boasts either a removable capelet or dolman armholes making short sleeves. In any case, the shoulders must be covered, the waistline must be fitted, and there must be at least one jewelled accent, in belt buckle or clips.

A prevailing type of evening gown is the princess style in velvet, satin or rough crepe, worn with a fringed capelet which slips on over the head, and off the same way.

The Greeks had a word for it—the new Grecian formal gown with draped bodice and looped armholes in the waist, sometimes banded with fur. It is practically backless, fitted about the hips, the skirt then blossoming out voluminously in tiny knife pleats. This is most classic in triple-sheer white.

The sophisticated classic formal gown, cut on simple princess lines, backless, with high decolletage in front, is often made of satiny black broadcloth this fall. With a couple of jewelled clips, and a capelet of white ermine, it's the last whisper.

The sleeved dinner dress is among the most dashing arrivals on the fashion front.

Beebe to Radio From Half Mile Under Sea

New York, Sept. 3 (INS)—In a "studio" a half a mile below the surface of the ocean off the Islands of Bermuda, Dr. William Beebe on Sept. 11 will stage the first deep sea broadcast in the history of radio.

His exploit is to be made possible by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, an obsolete British warship, the Rockefeller Bermuda biological station for scientific research and the National Broadcasting Company.

Dr. Beebe will broadcast about what he sees from the three-inch thick quartz glass ports in his "studio," the steel ball he built for the purpose of descending to great depths in the sea.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 3—Where the white man comes for his honeymoon, two Tuscarora Indians were married with ancient tribal ritual.

Sachem Chief Rickard stood on a ledge over the whirlpool and chanted the rites joining his granddaughter, Vivian Rickard, 18, and Clifford Printup, 20.

BOOKS—and a Number of Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

In some informative notes concerning W. R. Burnett sent out by his publishers, Harper & Brothers, one finds this interesting bit of information:

"I outlined 'The Giant Swing' first in 1922. It was finally written in 1932; in the 10 years interim I made two attempts to write it, one over 50,000 words, both of which I scrapped."

That sounded promising, to one who had happened not to have read anything of Mr. Burnett's—not even his "Little Caesar," which made such a success. An author who could take 10 years in the preparation of a novel, tearing up two lengthy versions, was an author to win one's favor at once.

But as I read chapter after chapter of Mr. Burnett's new book, called, as I have said above, "The Giant Swing," I wondered what the destroyed manuscripts must have been like. For surely they could have been no poorer than this.

And it might have been wiser for Mr. Burnett, who is still young, to wait another 10 years before he gave to the world this story of a boyish musician, planted in a dreary mid-western city, playing in an orchestra, with a dream in his heart of becoming a great composer; being tough because he thinks it is the way to be; secretly admiring a cruel wretch named Spanish; falling in love with a girl behind a cheap lunch counter; making friends with an elderly violinist in a symphony orchestra, who helps him to success—that's what it is about; and one can hear the cameramen getting it ready for the talkies, with its fist fights, its local atmosphere, its tinsel trappings.

Mr. Burnett chooses to write about "toughs"; and they all turn out to be sentimentalists, with papier-mache emotions. The girl, Ada, drags the hero to her room one night, and discovers she cannot go through with her purpose, because she really is in love with Spanish. Pepper has been thrown in her eyes by an irate rival. She is really a very wicked little girl, but Mr. Burnett strives to make us believe, I suppose, in her innate goodness when she flings poor Joe Nearing aside.

Not for a moment do you believe in these people, or in the town where they dwell; a place 20 hours from New York, 300 miles from Chicago, yet with skyscrapers 20 stories high, with "swanky" hotels with "crystal rooms" and foreign waiters, Greeks, a railway terminus, jazz bands, symphony concerts, "society" ladies, and I know not what else. It is a phantom town, and to me, at least, a phoney town. But it will all do very nicely in the talkies, which so easily bring into existence just such communities as this.

I will give one specimen of Mr. Burnett's method, and then bid him a fond farewell. Of the girl, Anne, whom Joe finally marries, he has this to say:

"She was a peach. Snobbish, nervous, bitterly satirical, but the real thing. She'd go all the way for you if she liked you, but if she didn't . . . terrible! She was particularly rough on uncouth and conceited males, conquering males, who demanded their pound of flesh or something. Also catty women. Often he turned his face away in shame; it was really too cruel when she started delicately to flay some one. He wanted to intercede, to smooth things over, but he never did; first, because he admired prowess in whatever form, and, second, the flayee usually deserved it."

I like that word "flayee." It is the gem of the year.

It is a relief to turn to a gay writer like P. G. Wodehouse, who comes to us again with "Hot Water" (Doubleday, Doran). Despite the temperature of the title, it is guaranteed to cool your brow this warm weather.

We all know Wodehouse. He is the despair of all humorous writers, and though he has given us 22 books through the years, not one of them is slovenly, not one but exudes the joy of life, and all the fun is human and clean and manly.

He can, in one brief paragraph, give a clear description of a character that causes us to understand his wide popularity; for we instantly say: "Yes, that is exactly right. I know a girl like that."

This, for example: "Now that the girl had come closer, Mr. Gedge was able to see that, though beautiful, she was not altogether the sort of girl he would have cared to be left alone with for long. There was that about her which would have rendered any male uneasy. In her lustrous eyes he observed a look which he had sometimes seen detected in those of his wife—the look that spells trouble. If she had come to St. Rocque to meet some member of his own sex, he did not envy that member."

Mr. Wodehouse has had his fling with Hollywood; but he had enough in one brief year, and it is good to know that he is back at his own work, which is the writing of delightful ear-free novels and short stories. His experience has fortunately not robbed him or his sense of humor. If it had——But we will not go into that.

Ruth Knight to Be Bride

Mr. and Mrs. George Knight, of Brockton, and Martha's Vineyard, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Carolyn Knight, to Mr. Morton Stearns Johnson of Cleveland, Ohio, the son of Mr. Ernest M. Johnson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., at a tea at the Martha's Vineyard Country Club.

Miss Knight was graduated from Bradford Academy in 1923 and attended Syracuse University with the class of 1927. She resides in New York and recently returned from a tour through Europe with her parents, who also had their other daughter, Miss Harriet Knight, with them.

Her fiance was also graduated at Syracuse University with the class of 1926. He is president of the Syracuse University Club of Cleveland, Ohio.

The wedding will take place next month.

Girls to Make Bow at Tea in Duxbury

Today the first of the season's debutante events is to take place at Powder Point, Duxbury, when Miss Barbara Glidden and Miss Hannah Coffin are presented together by their mothers, Mrs. William T. Glidden, Jr., and Mrs. Winthrop Coffin.

Miss Barbara will wear a white chalk crepe dress, and Miss Coffin will receive in a white chiffon dress trimmed with a broad green sash. Mrs. Glidden has selected a dark apricot lace dress, and Mrs. Coffin will appear in a sage green lace creation. The affair will take the form of a tea-dance at 4 p. m.

The pourers will be in charge of Miss Coffin's two sisters, Miss Ruth and Gertrude Coffin, who were presented last season. They will be assisted by Miss Jane Burgess, Miss Mary Esther Cooper, Miss Jane Dexter, Miss Alice Farnsworth, Miss Sally Foster, Miss Joanne Fisher, Miss Beatrice Harden, Miss Eleanor King, Miss Helen Knowles, Miss Isabella H. Lee, Miss Lucy H. Lee, Miss Blanche Marshall, Miss Barbara Coffin, Miss Frances McSwain, Miss Mary Morse, Miss Katherine Niles, Miss Margaret Spencer and Miss Louise Taylor.

Miss Barbara Glidden is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Glidden of 8 Barnstable rd., West Newton, and Miss Hannah Coffin's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Coffin of 45 Warren st., Brookline. They both attended the Beaver Country Day School.

Lifted from Life:

Retelling a Boston true story that Joe Rines told us because some one told Joe that it actually happened to him, we begin by telling you that a certain Brighton couple were not hitting it off in the okay manner during their hours at home together . . . The husband was wont to promise his little frau many things . . . And forgot to remember to give out! . . . Seems the L. F. had been yenning for a nice squirrel coat for such a time . . . Came the day, when after many trips into Manhattan to visit a girl friend of hers, the young wife went on a yachting cruise . . . Arranged for her by her girl friend with a wealthy and most charming gentleman . . . After the cruise—because he had such a time with the little frau from Boston—he insisted on gifting her with something she'd always wanted . . . Of course, the usual "I couldn't think of accepting," etc., ensued . . . With the wealthy one presenting his yachting playmate with a nice squirrel coat, valued at $1500 . . . Dreams come true! . . . Marvelous! . . . Fine! . . . And all that sort of thing did the Boston frau think . . . But how could she take the coat home for hubby's eyes to once-over? . . . She had a big idea! . . . She pawned it for $60 and took the check, tucked neatly in her purse, with her to Boston . . . A few days later her husband informed her he was going to Manhattan . . . Whereupon he was told by his wife that she'd found a New York pawnbroker for a fur coat and why didn't he look into it and see what he'd find . . . He took the check . . . Departed for New York . . . When he returned, after two of three days passed—just so it wouldn't look as though the little frau was too eager—he nonchalantly inquired what he'd found out at the pawn shop . . . Her hubby answered, Why, I wish you could have seen his old wife they showed me . . . Worn threadbare were the sleeves . . . It was frightful . . . And would take at least a hundred dollars to put it in shape, so I gave the check to the pawnbroker and told him to chuck it! . . . What could the little frau say or do? . . . The next morning, however, she WAS surprised when she went into her hubby's office on State st. to see her cagey hubby's fair secretary put on a beautiful squirrel fur coat and then trip along merrily on her way to lunch!

Going Places:

At last it seemed good to have some sort of a gay spot to tarry a while in—after the dull summer going . . . And we're telling you kind it was a gay, lively, merry spot the Cascades Roof, Thursday night, when Lou Walters became the N. T. G. of Boston and presented his new floor-show of ultradies . . . 'Twas fast moving, that show, from Mary Wick's entrance, togged out in a full dress suit and out-doing Kitty Doner in wearing a man's attire, to the finale, when those cute Corbettesers flitted out on the floor in the sheerest, snippiest of flesh pink strut costumes . . . Easily the stars of the show on opening night were Drena Gretzer—one of our pet acrobatic twisters—and Jimmy, of the tap dancing duo . . . But for curves and lines, we recommend Lillian Brushette with her blonde tresses . . . And for that sweet-sixteen-something-or-other that takes the boys' eyes, pretty little Blanche Christian, of Boston st., was an easy winner . . . Esther McDonald, in slinky black velvet, flourishing a cigaie in the sophisticated manner, did a neat wally number . . . But what we couldn't understand was why the male singer sang "Take Me Away" when the six blase show gals went into a we've-taken-them-off parade number . . . The table of men-about-town back of us would have exchanged their latest doll for a chance to be in the blondies' midst . . . Lou Walters has mixed up plenty of spice in the new show on the roof, and with that central location there's no reason why all of Boston's sitters-up-late shouldn't bulge those French windows wide open . . . The room was crammed full with all the regulars-about-town who first night it . . . The missing faces are still at the beaches, but if those blonde beauties don't get them their first night back in the city, we're wrong! . . . Even Ted Husing, sports announcer, who was in town for the golf match yesterday, couldn't resist sneaking up on the roof after he'd glimpsed those sweetgam photos in the Bradford's elevators . . . And you know how Husing is when he picks 'em!

Truth Will Out!

When we mentioned here, about a week back, that Wollaston's Frances Allbright, who helped Archie Hayes sail host in the Squantum Yacht Club races that Sunday, was promised to Archie, we were wrong . . . She's not promised to anyone and it was of another popular sailing couple at Wollaston we must have been thinking about.

JESSEL-TALMADGE Revue Featured on Met Stage

Vaudeville Two-Star Brand

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

The desire for living people in our leading temples of cinema brought George Jessel and Norma Talmadge to the Metropolitan yesterday in a somewhat coy musical and dancing contraption called Jessel's Own Little Revue. Mr. Jessel enjoyed assistance from all sides, such as, for example, a dancing chorus amply trained in all the new didoes that go with nervous legs; also from three colored boys who managed to make it clear that the dusky gentlemen of the South have their own notions on what constitutes spirited entertainment.

Mr. Jessel's "Little Revue" was extremely intimate; it was something of a hands-across-the-footlights demonstration with Mr. Jessel playing old tricks with new words. He was the same punster you enjoyed so heartily when he graced the Ziegfeld roster of men who do things to make people laugh. Miss Talmadge, of course, added charm to the performance; a likely lady, whose faintly spoken admission that she had been on the stage "only three weeks" could be taken at full value. There must have been anxious moments for both Mr. Jessel and Miss Talmadge during their get together scene. Mr. Jessel did most of the talking; Miss Talmadge, to the delight of the audience, turned every Jessel quip into reverse English. Gracefully, Mr. Jessel took it on the chin.

Hopeful Toiler

For more or less definite entertainment, the Jessel review employed Collette Lyons, who sang and shimmied; also George Snyder and Vivian Janis, chattering burlesquers, whose vivacity was not at all affected by the day's oppressive humidity. Mr. Jessel made his revue so wholly intimate that at times it became almost rotting. He toiled like a day laborer; he almost flirted with his audience; he ventured upon small intimacies with his company; he even ventured into song. It was a one-man show when once it got started, and Jessel saw to it that his own place was directly in the sun. Miss Talmadge's contribution was more picturesque than active.

On the screen, Hollywood slipped right back into its own in fascinating, luscious crime. Novelty being the watchword in "70,000 Witnesses," a nice, smiling juvenile halfback on the state eleven, is wiped out between halves by a massage with nitroglycerin. In this age and hour, ordinary pistols and machine guns seem too tame for Hollywood. As a matter of record, cobras and scorpions have been successfully utilized to make murder a treat. Now, it seems we have come to high explosives. What most of us liked best in this story, however, was the work of Charlie Ruggles, who for several seasons has been steadily captivating all who like good comedy. Mr. Ruggles merely entered upon a new conquest, leaving small crumbs for such excellent players as Phillips Holmes, Dorothy Jordan, Jack Mack Brown and Lew Cody.

Elsa Ersi, principal songbird in "The Laugh Parade," opening tonight at Shubert.

Follies the Cue in Burlesque

There will be a midnight show at the Old Howard tomorrow night, starting at 12:01 A. M., with the "Girls from the Follies" as the feature. This show is produced by Ed Ryan. The comedians are Sam Raynor and Lee Hickman, and the associate players are Elinor Walent, the Reid Sisters, Ray Parsons, Anna Smith, Carrigan and DeMuth and Charley Dane.

Gladys Reid

In addition to the burlesque the management provides a continuous vaudeville and picture program. Sharkey - Schmeling fight films are one of the outstanding features. The acts are the Nine Kikuta Japs and Fred Piano & Company.

On With the Show

The Bowdoin Square tomorrow features seven stage acts and talkies. The big feature is "Skyscraper Souls." The theme was the work of Charlie Ruggles, who for several seasons has been steadily captivating all who like good comedy. Mr. Ruggles merely entered upon a new conquest, leaving small crumbs for such excellent players as Phillips Holmes, Dorothy Jordan, Jack Mack Brown and Lew Cody.

State's Picture the Rare Thing, a

Jackie Cooper Grandly Aided by Conrad Nagel and Lewis Stone

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

This time it is the cast. Often it has been the director, sometimes the story. But here the actors act like real folks do in real life, and so "Divorce in the Family" turns out to be a human document, handsomely presented by numerous excellent performers. It has its laughs, it has its tears, and generally runs about the same course such a theme might run were it an honest-to-goodness happening.

This picture, now featured at Loew's State, could easily have been trite. At any moment it could have slipped from the groove, and gone drab. But players of the tested ability of Conrad Nagel and Lewis Stone, and that able little chap, Jackie Cooper, assisted by a clever youth, Maurice Murphy, as his cinematic brother, give genuineness to the yarn, keep it on the level of the believable, and nip and hold the interest. There is a tug at the heart, and that gulp in the throat touch that proves its merit in the sincerity of the audience reaction.

The panorama swings off grandly. One is in the land of the mesas. Cameras speak eloquently in their matchless silent way. Stone is the father of two boys—his for this one month of the year, to be returned to the divorced mother the other eleven months. She marries, this time Nagel, a physician. There is naught of great depth in the ensuing plot; its simplicity demands the best in the cast. And the actors give that.

Thanks be, the dialogue is of the right kind. It is rock-bottom language. Children speak as children do outside the studios; grown-ups aren't a bit hifalutin' in speech, but chatter just about the way home folks do. Thus

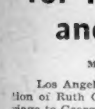
'Common Ground' Next for Ruth Chatterton and George Brent

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Sept. 3—Very important, indeed, is the selection of Ruth Chatterton's next picture. Ruth's romantic marriage to George Brent has been of such interest to the Chatterton fans all over the country that they will be eagerly watching for her next picture. "Paris Racket," originally chosen, has been discarded and in its place "Common Ground," by Gerald Beaumont, is named definitely as the next starring vehicle of Miss Chatterton and her new husband.



Louella O. Parsons to write dialogue these days.

Darryl Zanuck is very frank in saying that the excellent scenario prepared by Lillie Hayward and John Francis Larkin was largely responsible for the selection of "Common Ground." Lillie Hayward, pioneer screen writer, has been doing very well with these Warner operas, turning out any number of hits, and you will admit it takes a smart gal

I can hardly bear it. Universal is going to give us a story of Egyptian reincarnation called "Imhotep." You'd better put the title down in your notebook, for you are pretty apt to forget it. What with two such exotic players as Boris Karloff and Zita Johann, Junior Laemmle just couldn't resist delving into the occult sciences. Apparently Boris Karloff is influenced by all this mystery stuff, for he has dropped his first name of Boris and hereafter will be known merely as Karloff. Can it be that he is imitating the one and only Garbo?

Clara in Comeback

The most excited youngster in town today was John David Horsley, who won the coveted role opposite Clara Bow. I say coveted because Clara's return picture, "Call Her Savage," will be seen by thousands of fans who are eagerly waiting to see how their red-headed favorite looks and if she has changed in the year and a half she has been away from them. The lucky lad who plays opposite Clara was formerly with the Beverly Hills Community Players, with only one picture to his credit. And, at that, he played only a small part.

Sally on Vacation

The Hoot Gibsons (Sally Eilers to her public) are off to Agua Caliente for a holiday at the Mexican resort. Sally just finished "Hat Check Girl" and when she returns to town she will get herself ready to emote in the lead in Kathleen Norris' popular novel, "Second-Hand Wife. Winfield Sheehan has chosen John Boles to play the role of the middle-aged husband. John looks well with a little gray in his hair and he is certainly far better in mature roles than he is as the romantic young lover. "Second-Hand Wife" is scheduled before "State Fair," the big number with an all-star Fox cast.

there isn't a harsh line in the photoplay; and yet the humor teems, and one smiles much and laughs a great deal. This is because those easy lines are put into the mouths of true Thespians.

The story is not so fortunate as the dialogue. Towards the close, it drops to melodrama; its worst blight is the blood transfusion scene, wholly unnecessary and rather objectionable after one has seen so much hospital in fairly recent films.

Jackie Cooper is at his best. This little fellow grows in his power to amuse. His characterization here is one of his best, if not his very best. Nagel is splendid in an unsympathetic role, the second time lately he has been hateful in the tale but always superb in his acting. Stone, as always, is the old master. Lois Wilson is pleasing in every way as the mother. One must not forget a tribute to Louise Beavers, one of the best Negro players in filmland.

Through the work of these mimers, "Divorce in the Family" is made the rare thing, a "natural," the find that brings in the whole family to see and hear.

Negro Stars at the Scollay

Leonard Harper's colored musical comedy revue, the "Cotton Club Floor Show," comes to the Publix Scollay as the headline attraction. This Harlem show has a cast of 75 that includes many of the better known colored actors from the movies, legitimate theater, vaudeville and the night clubs, and will open with a special midnight premiere tomorrow night.

The cast is headed by that famous movie comedian, Stepin Fetchit, known as "The Laziest Man on Earth." Another star is Earl "Snakehips" Tucker, feature of Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds," "Rhapsody in Black" and Lou Holtz' "Revue of 1932."

For comedy relief, Harper has selected three of the best known colored acts in Harlem. Top honors go to "Hamtree" Harrington and Ed "How High is Up?" Frye. Williams and Cryer, known as "Harlem's Harmony Boys in Tan," present their songs and comedy in a high-class manner.

The feature picture will be the Four Marx Bros. in "Horse-feathers."

New Gayety

Starting tomorrow the New Gayety screen show will feature "The Doomed Battalion," with Tala Birell, Luis Trenker and Victor Varconi; and "The Silver Lining," with Maureen O'Sullivan and Montague Love. Five vaudeville acts are also on the bill.

Leon Errol Tops Gala Program

By HARRIS MORGAN

The Man in the Moon, nor Old Sol himself, could eclipse that gala program at Leow's Orpheum for the holiday week. Leon Errol—he of the capsible legs, no less!—is the topliner of a bang-up stage bill, while the screen sparkles with the teeming fun of that hilarious picture, "Speak Easily," one of the best comedies of the year.

This is one of Errol's very few vaudeville appearances, if not his first, since his rise to eminence on the musical comedy stage many years ago in "Sally," "Hitchy Koo," "Louis the 14th," "Yours Truly" and scores of other musical hits and on the screen in "Only Saps Work," "One Heavenly Night" and several other films. Whether on the musical comedy stage, on the screen or on the vaudeville stage, his famous legs are, of course, still the highlight of all his antics.

For this appearance he is doing his famous furniture-wrecking inebriate sketch. It proves a riot of comedy from start to finish. In itself the piece is loaded with uproarious comedy potentialities, but under the capable manipulation of Errol it assumes riotous proportions and has the audience limp from laughter. There is no doubt about the comedian's ability to provoke laughter and the cleverness of his antics.

Screen Sparklers

The diminutive monologue comedian, Joe Laurie, Jr., is another hitch spot on the "big name" bill and is not far behind Errol in the matter of garnering laughs, though his comedy is of a distinctly different nature. Laurie's forte is the rambling story and the subtle quip, with a mite of singing and a bit of dancing included in his turn. He is a clever entertainer who knows how to entertain his audiences.

Several other excellent acts are seen on the elaborate bill. They include the Betty Jane Cooper and Lathrop Bros. revue, a miniature musical comedy revue with dancing and singing; Frank Swannes and Joe Daly offering a number of songs done in unique style and the Leach La Quinlan Trio in some daring and wonderful feats in mid-air.

Buter Keaton and Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante are starred in "Speak Easily," according to uproarious comedy, the picture tells of a college professor who becomes an "ancr" for a moderate rank town show and his attempts to make a Broadway sensation of it.

WOOING WITH A PICCOLO

Lovelorn Charlie Butterworth plays a little ditty to Jeanette MacDonald, in "Love Me Tonight," the Maurice Chevalier picture at the Paramount and Uptown.

FRIENDS PLEDGE PAYING JOB FOR LIFER

A job must be found for Frank Howard, alias James Steinberg, if the aged Medford man is to escape life in prison for the theft of a pair of shoes.

Officials of the State Parole Board, endorsing the Boston Evening American's revelation of the facts in this strange case, declared today that lack of employment was the lone obstacle to a full pardon.

OLD EMPLOYEE AIDS

If a job is forthcoming, Steinberg, as he is better known, is expected to be freed next Wednesday by Governor Ely and the Governor's council. The chief executive has made known that he will act at once on the case.

A. W. Teele, former employer of Steinberg, lauding the aged man's industry and ability, said today that he would do everything in his power to help him, but, unfortunately, Teele was not able to promise a job.

Approached by the Boston Evening American, the Medford Unemployment Relief Committee became active in the case. Chairman Arthur A. Ashley promised that he and Mabel A. Canty, assistant secretary, would appeal personally to Medford business men in behalf of Howard and that he hoped to have a job for him by Wednesday.

Scores of persons have called the Evening American, expressing sympathy for Steinberg and praising the efforts to free him, but as yet no one has been found who can promise permanent employment once the prison gates have been opened.

In every pardon or commutation hearing the question of employment comes up.

If a job is waiting and the plea is considered a worthy one, the release is granted.

This question will be asked of Steinberg.

The Evening American, continuing its efforts to bring this happy ending this unfortunate drama which is affecting the lives of not only Steinberg but also his wife and his daughter, Florence, today asks any of its readers who may be able to give this man permanent employment to call the City Editor on the telephone immediately. The telephone number is Liberty 4000.

Investigating Steinberg's ability to work, a representative of the Evening American called upon Teele, president of E. Teele & Co., in Medford, and there learned that Steinberg was an expert painter and varnisher.

Teel said:

TO CANVASS FRIENDS

"Steinberg was one of the most capable workers that we have ever had in our employ. He was with us for 15 years up until three years ago and we never had a complaint with his work. We were forced to let him go because, with the advancement in the methods of painting automobiles and carriages, there was no longer work for him to do.

"I will do all in my power to assist Mr. Steinberg to obtain employment, although, unfortunately, my firm is unable to use his services at this time.

"I shall get in contact with some of my business acquaintances who might be in a position to offer something in the line of him. I would still be willing to recommend him as one of the finest types of workmen that I have ever come in contact with.

RENT, FOOD SUPPLIED

Teel said his concern is employing only 27 men at present where as in normal times the number is 80. He will also try to help Steinberg obtain a pardon from the Governor and Council at next Wednesday's meeting, and hopes to get influential men to speak for the prisoner.

Rent of the Steinberg home was paid to the landlady, Mrs. T. O'Connell, of Tainter st., today by the Prisoners' Welfare Society with funds left by Lotta Crabtree, the famous Boston actress.

Mrs. O'Connell, who has reduced the rent from $35 to $30 when Steinberg lost his job, accepted $25 this time.

Friends of the family are aiding them with groceries to keep them pending action on a pardon.

At the present, according to Steinberg's wife, her husband will take any kind of work that he is able to perform. She said that the salary was no object as long as it gave them enough to provide rent and food.

"Officials of the board made every effort to return him to his home without betraying his past history," Chairman Brooks stated, "but the board had to be governed by the law and in this case the law called for a term in the man into custody."

Mrs. Steinberg, when she appears before Governor Ely to plead for her husband's release, will carry with her to show the governor two bank books showing a balance of a dollar in each account.

Barry said that when he met Howard after his pardon in 1914, the paroled lifer said to him:

"You'll never regret your confidence in me."

"And," said Barry, "I never have."

Howard, he revealed, was for five years the treasurer of the railroad Y. M. C. A. in Charlestown immediately after his release from prison.

His wife and daughter are being aided temporarily with funds 'eft by the late Lotta Crabtree to the Prisoners' Welfare League. A grocery man and an ice dealer who called at the house in Medford prepared to give aid, were unable to do so because one was out at work.

LIFER TELLS OWN STORY

I was to get out and get a job, any kind of a job.

"After I was paroled from prison in 1914, I never drank and never smoked. I kept as far away as I could from a bank that might be a tempting one.

"I had a good job and we were happy, but when the job went trouble began.

IN DESPERATE STRAITS

"You know my wife was sick with neuritis. When a man is out of a job and there's sickness and money going out and no money coming in it isn't long before things get precarious.

"That day—last Monday—I walked into Boston from my Medford home to look up a job. I was still looking for a job after two years, although I had done occasional odd jobs.

"I had three addresses I got out of a paper. One was a painting job in Winthrop. When I called there they said the job was filled.

"The second was an employment agency in School st. They said the job was filled but 'Come back because the man might not prove satisfactory.'

"I then went to a place back of the Jewish church but there was no job there.

URGE TO STEAL

"I went back to the Common and sat down. I thought and thought for an hour.

"Then I started out walking again and in front of the department store I met a man I knew. His first name was George. I don't know his last name.

"We talked a while and I went in the store with him while he bought some shirts. While he was looking at the shirts I looked at shoes.

"I don't know what possessed me to pick up the shoes and put them in my bag—but I did. I can't understand why. I never had any desire to take anything before.

"I walked out of the store with the shoes in my bag and they followed me out and arrested me—and I am back again in prison.

"I don't know why I did it. I can't understand it and never will because I am not a dishonest man."

War Hero Cuts Wife With His Citation

His framed citation, signed by Gen. Pershing for gallantry in action during the war, was the weapon used when Frank Fall of Columbia rd., South Boston, attacked his wife, it was charged in South Boston court today.

Fall was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction for assaulting his wife with the citation and with a stevedore's case hook. Several stitches were taken in Mrs. Fall's wounds.

VET POLICEMAN AGAIN MISSING

Worcester, Sept. 3—George F. Smith, traffic policeman in the business district, has been missing for several days, police admitted today, when news of a secret search for him leaked out.

Smith, who was wounded and gassed in war service overseas, has not been seen either at his own home in Granite st., or at his mother-e's home in Bay State rd., since early in the week.

His service revolver was found at his mother's home but his uniform and other police paraphernalia could not be found.

Formal charges of being absent from duty have not been placed against him due to the absence from the city of Police Chief Thomas F. Foley.

It was also disclosed that Smith was similarly sought last March but returned home.

At that time, police admitted, Smith was placed under observation at Worcester State Hospital but later was restored to duty.

Boy Seriously Burned

John Bazzinotti, 2, of Mitchell st., South Boston, was seriously burned in his home yesterday when he tripped over a pail of boiling water.

NO. ADAMS MILL TO PUT 1400 AT WORK

North Adams, Sept. 3 (AP)—The Berkshire Fine Spinning Associates announced today that their mills at Adams, the company's largest unit, which has been closed for nine weeks, would re-open next Tuesday.

Fourteen hundred employes will be given work at first and later 400 others recalled. The Adams mill manufactures cotton cloth.

Many other mills of the concern throughout New England have been operating day and night schedules recently after shut downs.

TOBACCO PLANT OPENS

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 3 (AP)—Two hundred men have gone to work at a tobacco redrying and redrying plant at Goldsboro and several hundred more prepared to do likewise in a few days at another plant there. The operations will continue until February.

Plants also were opened at Wilson, Kinston, Greenville and Rocky Mount.

BEGIN NIGHT WORK

At Anderson, S. C., and at Iva, near there, full night operations got under way in two cotton mills.

Half the Abbeville Cotton Mills opened this week after a shutdown of three months, and a night shift was added. This brought work to 300.

At Pelzer, S. C., the Pelzer Manufacturing Co. started operating on a two-day-s-week basis for several months, has adopted a 55-hour-a-week basis.

AUTOIST DYING IN GAS FIRE

Lighting of a cigarette while his automobile was being filled with gasoline caused a filling station boy may result in death for John A. Drain of 50 Cherry st., Everett.

He was removed to Malden hospital after a heroic attempt by three men to save his life. His hands placed on the danger list, he having suffered severe burns.

The swindling of the sedan was open when Drain drove into the filling station and ordered the tank filled. As the attendant started to comply, Drain lighted a cigarette. The gas fumes ignited. Drain stepped out of the auto and grabbed the gasoline hose from the attendant in an effort to save the machine. As he did so his clothing became ignited. Then he started for Main st., the flames being fanned by his motion.

His companion, James Horrigan, of the same address, was after him as did Police Sergt. John T. Murphy and Patrolman James E. Maloney. Horrigan tripped him and then all three men tore the burning clothing from his body. After treatment in a nearby physician's office Drain was removed to the hospital. Damage to his car was slight.

Ryan Again Leading Show at Chop Stick

Bert Ryan resumed his role as master of ceremonies at Chop Stick Restaurant, 353 Huntington ave, at the fall opening last night. To usher in the fall season there is a floor show including the Sunshine Girls in dance specialties, Pitts and Marie, dance team, and Syd Leonard, the boy with many taps, who are assisting Ryan.

The restaurant has been entirely redecorated in an attractive manner. A large number of reservations are reported for the Labor Day celebration. Ray Stewartson and his Society Orchestra offer a program of dance music.

ACCIDENT HELPS WOOD'S THUNDER BOAT WIN

FANNING

With GEORGE UNDERWOOD

DePaolo Broadcasting. | Auto Racing Holds it.
Record Sports Throng? | The Psychology of It.
Boxing? Baseball? No. | Readville Saturnalia.

Pete Decided 'Twas "Bad for Health"

THE LAST TIME we recall seeing Peter DePaolo was that memorable afternoon on the Sheepshead Bay Speedway when Louis Chevrolet turned turtle on Death Curve, went up in a blaze of burning gasoline, only to escape death miraculously, and Ralph De Palma, with his nephew, DePaolo, as his mechanician, whizzed on in a dizzy dervish dance to fame, glory and a record. DePalma, the greatest driver of his era, and perhaps the greatest of all time, was succeeded by his nephew, DePaolo, as Speed King. Peter twice won the American Automobile Association championship, was victor of scores of sensational races here and abroad and won the 1925 Indianapolis race in time that never was approached until last Decoration Day. Today he is one of the most prominent officials of the A. A. A. and is here to referee the Labor Day speed saturnalia at Readville. There isn't a more interesting and enthusiastic automobile fan in the world than DePaolo. He's on the air now. You'll find him interesting. Tune in, folks.

"MY RACING CAMPAIGNS took me all over the world," says Peter, "and I've had a chance to see, observe and study sports of all sorts. I think you sports writers underestimate the news value of auto racing. How do you gauge public interest? Isn't it by the attendance attracted? I've been at big fights, World Series baseball and leading college football games here in America, soccer games in Scotland, saw the Derby at Epsom Downs, racing in the Argentine and bullfights in Spain. But nowhere in this wide world have I seen such a tremendous throng as annually gathers at Indianapolis for the big 500-mile race. Outside of auto racing America's record crowds were those which saw the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago and which attended last fall's big football game on the Coast. A couple of thousand more than 100,000 persons witnessed both of these events. A 75,000 crowd in a baseball record-breaker. The most persons who saw the Kentucky Derby here were listed as 60,000 by the most enthusiastic reporters.

"SIXTY THOUSAND—Pouf! Why that Kentucky Derby gathering would be 'lost' in Indianapolis. Over here we rave over the huge crowds that attend the British Derby at Epsom Downs. How is it some of you fellows forget that the attendance at the Indianapolis 500-mile race dwarfs the Derby gathering? Why for 20 years, rain or shine, the Indianapolis race has been viewed by crowds ranging from 160,000 to 200,000. Please remember that the Indianapolis crowd is a paid crowd. Half of the crowd which sees the Derby in England see it from the hillsides and slopes that look down on Epsom Downs. The 200,000 crowds at Indianapolis are fully represented in the box office.

"THE RECORD ATTENDANCE drawing Indianapolis races are reflected by auto races throughout the country. Look over your New England situation, for instance. What did horse racing, both running and light harness, draw at Rockingham? Why, Zabala, the Olympic Marathon winner, and a flock of the country's greatest Marathoners only drew a handful of spectators to Rockingham. How different automobile racing. Under the guiding genius of Dick Dunn, a total of approximately 150,000 persons saw the three auto races Dick put on at Rockingham in the last 12 months. Rockingham's record crowd was the auto crowd. It was the only sport which could draw them to that somewhat isolated track up in New Hampshire. Dunn will draw bigger crowds at Readville.

"YES, YOU WILL SEE Readville's record crowd next Monday," enthusiastically continued De Paolo, now thoroughly warmed up and hitting on the high. "Why, that flock of human skyrockets and daredevils Dunn has assembled will have the spectators thicker than the fallen leaves in Vallombrosa. 'Stubby' Stubblefield, most daring of the Coast drivers; Mauri Rose, king of the mid-west bull-rings; Milt Marion, Bobby Sall, Ray Carter, Lloyd Vioux, Ed Lieport, Doc MacKenzie, all of the stars will be there. And so will one of New England's biggest sports crowds be there. And why will they be there? I'll tell you why they'll be there. They'll be there because there is no sport in this wide, wide world that packs one-half the thrills of auto racing.

"WHAT SPORTING SPECTACLE equals that of a field of racing automobiles, cutting the air at 100 miles an hour, sweeping at the turn more closely bunched than a field of running horses—inches, not feet apart? There's a psychological twist that draws the fans to auto races like flies to a sugar barrel. The possibility of death, terrifying spills, serious accidents. There are few, mighty few, fans with souls so dead as to wait to see a racing driver killed or hurt. But if there is an accident, a spill or a fatality, everyone wants to see it. Say, we're always talking about the brutality of bullfighting and the number of men killed in the bullrings of Spain, Mexico and other Latin countries. Why, if one-tenth of the number of toreadors, picadors and matadors were killed in the bullrings of the world as go to their deaths on the auto speedways, you'd find Spain closing up their plaza de toros as tight as a drum!

"THERE IS AN irresistible thrill to auto racing that keeps the auto fans chained to the altar of the sport. Take me, for instance. I was brought up in the game. I've been in auto racing from the cradle up. Yet the sport never pales on me. Rather it grows. You'll see me hitting it out 300, 500, 1000 miles just to see purely local race meetings. The sport fascinates me. When these drivers dice with death I must be there at the trackside seeing them. It's in my blood as it is in the blood of millions, which auto racing attendances prove are attracted to the most heart-thrilling, soul-stirring sport of all."

DEPAOLO PAUSED long enough for us to inquire somewhat pertinently, perhaps: "But we notice you're in auto racing from the sight-seeing angle now, not racing. You're not an old bird yet, Pete. You should have a lot of races in you. How did you come to give it up?"

"Looking at races," grinned the former Speed King, "is better for the health than being in them. After being dragged half a mile by a speeding car and thinking things over in a couple of long hospital sieges, I arrived at the conclusion I'd live longer if I remained on the spectators' side of the fence."

British Speed Boat Crippled in Race Won by Wood

Detroit, Sept. 3 (AP)—In one of the most thrilling demonstrations of speed and powerboat piloting, Gar Wood, American defender, after trailing at the start cut loose with his Miss America X today to win the first heat of the Harmsworth trophy race from Kaye Don, British challenger.

The second heat will be run Monday and a third, if necessary, on Tuesday.

So slow was Wood's craft in the first four laps of the 35-mile course today that it seemed he could not get the four 12-cylinder motors to produce their maximum power. Seemingly, however, he was merely conserving his boat, for he opened up at the end of the fourth lap and crossed the line to start the final lap only a few boat lengths behind Don's white-hulled Miss England III.

After the race, Wood said: "I won the race exactly as I planned it; I am very happy and I hope to win again Monday."

DON'S BOAT CRIPPLED

Miss England III, after the race, arrived at its boat well with its stern low in the water. Don said the boat had taken considerable wate.

Don later issued a statement in which he explained that his boat had been slowed on the third lap by a loosened throttle control which caused the Starboard motor to idle, and by a water circulation pipe which had pulled out, causing the boat to ship water.

DON MAKES FASTEST LAP

Despite Wood's victory, which at the finish showed a margin of nearly two miles, Miss England III turned up the fastest lap, circling the course the first time around at a speed of 88.685 statute miles an hour. Wood's fastest lap was at a speed of 87.387 miles an hour, on his second time around.

The average speed for the 35 mile heat was Miss America X, 76.014; Miss England III, 71.265. This was considerably slower than last year's best average, which Kaye Don set in Miss England II at 89.913 miles an hour.

The race was run under probably the most unsatisfactory conditions ever prevailing for a similar event. Rain that began early in the morning continued intermittently, causing just fog enough to permit the

Baer and Risko Go Sought by Garden

New York, Sept. 3 (INS)—Madison Square Garden today awaited word from Max Baer, California heavyweight, and Johnny Risko, on invitations to battle here in a 15-round bout next month. The winner may meet the victor of the Mickey Walker-Max Schmeling fight.

How Gar Wood and Don Boats Line Up

Detroit, Sept. 3 (INS)—The Harmsworth Trophy race boats at a glance:

Kaye Don's Miss England III—Thirty-five feet long; nine and one-half foot beam; powered with two Rolls Royce engines, developing 4400 horsepower; estimated top speed, 117 miles per hour; top speed with special fuel (new world straight-away record) 119.81.

Gar Wood's Miss America X—Thirty-eight feet long; ten and one-half foot beam; powered with four Packard motors, developing 8400 horsepower; estimated top speed, 120 miles per hour.

ENGLISH ACE IN SHORTS BEATS CECIL METZ

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 3 (AP)—Henry W. (Bunny) Austin of England, second seeded foreign star, officially opened the 1932 national tennis championships at Westside Tennis Club today with a first round triumph over Cecil Metz of Memphis, Tenn., 6—1, 6—2, 6—1.

COSTUME BOTHERS METZ

It was both a physical and sartorial victory for the English ace, who played in flannel shorts and a floppy white hat, a distinction shared with no other player in the 10-year history of the center court.

The sun was smiling, however, and Austin's striking costume apparently bothered no one except Metz, who was outclassed.

GRANT HITS SECOND ROUND

Bryan Grant, Jr., of Atlanta, former clay court champion, reached the second round when he received a default from Wray Brown, St. Louis veteran.

Sidney Wood, Jr., of New York, fifth seeded American, served warning on the field by overwhelming Arnold Jones of Providence, R. I., former member of this country's Davis Cup squad, 6—0, 6—3, 6—1. Wood is playing better than for the last two years and is considered a distinct threat to Henri Cochet, whose he figures to meet in the quarter finals.

DUTRA LEADING DUDLEY 4 UP AT 18TH HOLE

Keller Course, St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 3 (INS)—Shooting a 67, Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, Cal., was leading Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., four up, after 18 holes of play in their semi-final match of the national professional golfers tournament here today.

While Dutra was thrilling a big gallery, Dudley was hitting the high spots himself, taking only 71 strokes, one under par.

Going to the 17th hole Dutra was three up, but the big Californian won the 18th with another birdie, a four, with a great tee shot and an equally great second.

Frank Walsh, of Chicago, was making a romp of his match with Champion Tom Creavy, and after 18 holes of play the Chicagoan was leading eight up.

Whose fault WAS it? Was it hers? She loved perhaps too much and too well, but that was all. Was it his? He loved perhaps too frequently and too boyishly, but that was all. The marriage of Kim and Mary Faith went on the rocks in a manner you'll understand, vividly told by the famous author of "Lovejoy" and "The Flapper Wife." Begin with the first installment of "Mary Faith" by Beatrice Burton, beginning next Tuesday, Sept. 6.

YANKEES SET NEW LEAGUE RECORD

New York, Sept. 3 (AP)—The Yankees set a new major league record today by scoring two runs in the first inning against Washington to give them 133 consecutive games this season without having been shut out.

The previous record, which they equalled yesterday, was set by the Boston and Philadelphia National League clubs in 1894. They each went through an entire 122-game season without being blanked.

Counting 55 games at the end of last season without a shutout, the Yankees now have gone through 188 straight games, scoring in every one.

A homer by Earle Combs, the first man up, was enough to establish the new mark.

Bouts Last Night

At New York—Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, defeated Phil Rafferty, New York welterweight (6).

At Paris, France—Young Perez, claimant of world's flyweight title, defeated Lou Seeza, Buffalo (15).

At Asbury Park, N. J.—Vincent Dundee, New Jersey middleweight, defeated Billy Angelo, Leipersille, Pa. (10).

At New York—Ben Leonard, N. Y., d. Phil Rafferty, N. Y., dec.

At St. Louis—Sam Slaughter, Ark., d. Al Mailborn, Mo., dec.

STELLA BESTS HER OWN 100 METER MARK

Toronto, Sept. 3 (AP)—Stella Walsh, Polish-American Olympic champion, bettered her own world record for 110 meters today by winning the dash for women at the Canadian National Exhibition track and field games in 11 8-10 seconds. Hilda Strike, of Montreal, was second and Nellie Halstead, of England, third.

Miss Walsh's previous record, set in the Los Angeles Olympic games, was 11 9-10 seconds.

GREGORY WINS 10 MILES

Lou Gregory, Newark, N. J., distance star who placed fifth for the United States in 10,000 meters run at Los Angeles, won the Canadian 10-mile championship, with Billy Reynolds and Cliff Bricker, both Canadians, trailing him home.

His time was 54 minutes, 24 3-5 seconds, good considering the crumbly condition of the track.

Although amateur officials clocked Miss Walsh in the new record time, the mark probably will go unrecognized because of a strong following wind sweeping the track.

So What?

—By JOE MOONEY—

So it begins to look like Hoover's Moratorium will go extra innings.

The Greater Engineer is more than willing to play with the boys. But it looks like our side will never come to bat.

And now comes Montagu Norman with the suggestion that we change the ball game into a cricket match.

Nobody knows just what Norman is doing here, but it's a cinch he didn't go to Bar Harbor just to see the eclipse.

Remember when they used to call Turkey the Sick Man of Europe? He should hear about our operation.

Don't overmatch America.

Braves to Play at Falmouth Tuesday

The Boston Braves will be the guests of the Rockland Milk Fund committee on Tuesday afternoon, playing Falmouth, champions of the Cape Cod League.

REST CURE IN MAINE AHEAD FOR OUIMET

By BILL GRIMES

Accompanied by Arthur J. Houghton and Leonard Shearer, Francis Ouimet, who captained the seventh victorious United States Walker Cup team, departed this morning for Maine.

There Francis will rest up and recuperate from the effects of his recent illness and the physical and mental strain of the international matches, before going to Baltimore to defend his national amateur championship.

Francis will remain at Arthur Houghton's camp until the middle of next week, when he will return here, gather up his golf clubs, climb into Bill Danforth's plane and fly to the Oriole City.

He has been drawn and weak since his illness a week ago, and Ouimet was practically all in at the conclusion of his round with Capt. Tony Torrance. He played the last seven holes solely on his unflinching nerve, for he was just about out on his feet.

The terrific heat and the unusually high humidity would have caused a less courageous player to quit, especially one in Ouimet's rundown condition.

OUIMET TO BUILD UP

Three or four days with Arthur Houghton will make a new man out of Francis Ouimet.

"What Nibs needs is a few nights sleep in that pine air of Maine," declared Houghton, "and plenty of lamb chops and potatoes.

"The good old state of Maine will bring such a noticeable change in Francis that you won't know him when he returns next Tuesday or Wednesday. He has played his last golf until next Thursday, afternoon, when he will be in Baltimore, for he has agreed to leave his clubs at home. If I catch him so much as eyeing my set, I will throw them in the lake which probably is the best thing I could do for they are still a mystery to me."

HOUGHTON CHAMP'S PAL

Anytime Francis Ouimet is preparing to win a national championship or to defend a title, Arthur Houghton is a perfect associate for him. For 20 years, Francis and Houghton have been close friends.

WALKER TRAINS TO TRUMPET STRAINS

Summit, N. J., Sept. 3.

Yessir, that's my baby . . .
No, Sir, I don't mean mebbe,
Yessir, that's MY baby no-o-oOW!

Little Mickey Walker is training for the fight of his life out here in the hill section of Jersey in a training camp like no other training camp you have ever seen, or will ever see again after Mickey and Doctor Kearns have passed this way for the last time.

All day long the saxophones and sparring partners moan, for Mickey likes to get hot—in the ring and out of it—and yesterday a man could get hot in summit without half trying.

While the thermometer played hide-and-go-seek with a hundred in the shade and Dan King's Garden Ballroom Band played everything it hoped it knew, Mickey the Mauler romped through an afternoon of work that would have put a less sturdy fellow flat on his back. And when it was over he was begging for more.

He is in great shape, is Walker, and he confidently believes that 16 evenings hence he'll hook Herr Max Schmelling into the resin sure.

Music With Your Movies:

But here are some pictures snatched from a day of red-hot jazz and red-hot sunshine as the We-Got-Rhythm camp rolled along its merry way:

Mickey and the Missus and their eight-months old baby performing before the movie cameras. And little Jimmy Walker (that's the baby) cries and cries, spoiling the scene, and finally reaches up and socks his pappy on the chin with a short left hook. So they have to start the scene over, and this time Mickey says to the Missus: "You hold the baby." And the band plays "Yessir, That's My Baby."

Your earnest agent takes Mrs. Walker's place before the camera and says: "Mickey, that's a fine youngster you have there and a fine name you've chosen for him. What do you want him to be when he grows up?"

And Mickey says: "I'll tell you, Bill, the fight game is a hard game and I wouldn't want him to be a fighter. But if he first grows up to be as big a man as his namesake, the Honorable James J. Walker, everybody at our house will be satisfied." And the crowd cheers and the band plays "Will You Love Me in December as You Do in May?"

Whereupon the cameras stop grinding momentarily and the young lady entertainers who have accompanied Mr. King's Garden Ballroom Band to Summit come rushing forward in droves to pump your agent's hand and tell him that so far as they are concerned Gable may as well go back to waiting tables.

But a can.id black sheep tethered to an apple tree just above where the scene is being shot goes, "Baaaaaaaaaaaa-ad." That lousy sheep! Just a d—n dramatic critic at heart, that's what he is.

This, however, attracts the attention of Mr. Swifty Morgan, who goes dashing over to demand: "Tell me, black sheep, have you got any wool?"

"Yessir, Yessir, three bags full," replies the sheep. Which sends Mr. Swifty Morgan searching for some shears, things being very tough along Broadway for the Golden Wedding King these days.

The Business of the Day:

Then, 'mid a flourish of trumpets and a roll of drums and to the applause of the male spectators and the squeals of the young ladies over the symmetry of his muscles, Master Walker crawls into the ring to proceed with the serious business of the afternoon.

Doctor Kearns, in person, takes care of the introductions, getting Walker's name letter perfect and the others reasonably close to a par until he comes to that of Johnny Indrisano. There is no sense in trying to reproduce in cold type what the Doc tagged Indrisano. It is enough to say that in his Sunday form, Josephus Humphries never took a name for a rougher buggy ride.

Arthur Hattick, one of the 103rd st. boys and, I believe, a sporter of the Bronson silks, goes a fast round with Mickey and then comes the veteran Pietro Corey. Corey's style faintly resembles Schmeling's, although it is doubtful if he copied it during the 20-odd seconds he lasted with Herr Max in a Newark ring some seasons back.

Pietro comes rushing in popping away, but Mickey meets him with a stiff left hook right on top of his lunch and Pietro stops flat-footed to think things over. The band plays "I Guess I'd Better Change My Plans."

After Corey comes Indrisano, whether Kearns can pronounce him or not, and let me tell you that this Indrisano boy is nobody's Joh. He is one of the sort of whom the other boys say, he holds too much, or his style would make me look bad. But what they mean is that they want no part of his game either off the tee or on the green.

Johnny gives our Michael a pretty fair going over for a time, but that left hand finally catches up with him, too. When it does his head bobs in distressing fashion and the band plays "Auf Wiedersehen." But I think the boys should have saved that one for the 19th and Herr Schmeling, if and in case.

Madame Vous Avez (Pardon my French) Raison:

So after that we go down the hill again to talk to Mme. Bey, who runs this famous training camp on the outskirts of Summit, and get what really should have been our story for this column. I mean that Mme. Bey has a story. She has been a lot of places and seen a lot of things, so some day we must devote a whole column, or maybe two, to her.

Mme. Bey was born at Constantinople on a date which I did not have the temerity to inquire about—but while still quite young and—from her pictures taken in trailing evening gowns in various ball rooms of various embassies—quite striking looking, she married Sidky Bey.

No sooner had she promised to love, honor and O. Bey, than her husband was transferred to Washington as secretary of the Turkish embassy. William McKinley was President then and it was 1897. On the wall of her dining room, where Mickey Walker retreats to dine in private, is a picture of Mme. Bey standing in a group with William McKinley in the Temple of Music at the Pan American Exposition in Buffalo. A man named Czolgosz with a handkerchief wrapped about his hand came forward to shake hands with his President that day. It was Sept. 6, 1901, 31 years ago next Tuesday.

But when Mme. Bey says: "That terrible, terrible man" in a husky, slightly accented voice and stands staring as if fascinated at the picture, it was only yesterday.

Oh, yes, I must write a story about Mme. Bey some day.

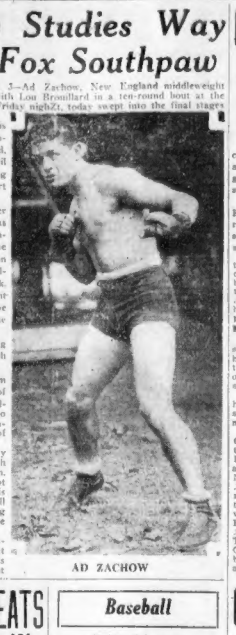
Zachow Studies Way to Out-Fox Southpaw

Dover, N. H., Sept. 3—Ad Zachow, New England middleweight champion, who clashes with Lou Brouillard in a ten-round bout at the Boston Garden on next Friday night, today swept into the final stages of his training.



AD ZACHOW

Albert Sherry, who is getting the youthful Zachow ready for Brouillard, says that from now until next Wednesday boxing will compose the main part of Ad's training.

Billy Murphy, former Lowell southpaw star, has been asked to help Zachow. Murphy will teach the New England champion how to prepare for Brouillard's southpaw attack. Murphy is a fine student of boxing and should be able to give Zachow some valuable tips.

Southpaw sparring partners will work with Zachow each day.

The training program calls for six rounds of boxing each day. In addition, Zachow will do three rounds of bag punching, and three rounds of rope skipping.

Zachow is already down to 153 pounds which is his best fighting notch. His trainers will attempt to keep him around this poundage so that he will have all of his fighting fire when he steps into the ring.

The heavy hitting Zachow says that if he can get a good belt at Brouillard's chin he will knock him out.

regatta committee to get the two hydroplane races underway at 7 a. m. after a 30-minutes postponement.

WIND BOUNCES BOATS

By that time a sharp wind had blown up off Lake St. Clair and kicked up white caps that caused the two boats to bounce considerably and the rain, coming again in the fourth lap, contributed poor visibility to the pilots' troubles.

Nevertheless, both boats performed splendidly.

Taking no chances on another premature start, both Don and Wood hung back at the start, about a minute before the starting gun, both opened up, to coms roaring down to the starting line only a few seconds after the gun. Don was 15 seconds behind and Wood 20.

The English boat shot into an immediate lead. At the end of the first lap it was half a mile ahead. Finishing the second and third laps it seemed that only a mishap could deprive it of a victory. Approaching the finish of the fourth lap, however, Wood had all but overtaken Don. A few yards more and he shot into the lead. At the final gun he was nearly two miles in front of the British challenger.

THOUSANDS SEE RACE

The rain failed to discourage many thousands of spectators. They lined the shore of the mainland, some with umbrellas and many seeking shelter under newspapers. Opposite the course several hundred craft, ranging from canoes to huge ferryboats, brought additional thousands to watch the contest.

O'DOUL LEADS FOXX BY 5 POINTS

New York, Sept. 3 (AP)—After a couple of weeks of comparative inactivity, Jimmie Foxx again began to swing his bat in his early season form this week.

He couldn't quite catch up with Frank O'Doul of Brooklyn, the current major league leader, but he set up a few marks for the boys to shoot at.

In seven days, ending with yesterday's games, Jimmie smashed out 13 hits, scored nine runs and batted in seven. He shot his batting average up seven points to .364, but remained five points behind O'Doul, who gained three points in a short week's program.

KLEIN LOSES GROUND

Chuck Klein, National League slugging ace, lost some ground in his race with his American League townsmen, but still remained ahead of them in departments and showed a better all-around record.

Klein led his league in hits, runs, homers and stole bases and was second in the other three departments.

In the batting averages, Foxx and O'Doul remained supreme among the foremost "regulars." Trailing Foxx came Manush, Washington and Ruth, New York, .346; Gehrig, New York, .344; Jolley, Boston, .329; Ferrell, St. Louis, .324; Simmons, .319; and Cronin, Washington, .319. O'Doul's leading rivals were V. Davis, Philadelphia, .351; Klein, .346; Hurst, Philadelphia, .344; P. Waner, Pittsburgh, .341; Terry, New York, .334; Stephenson, Chicago, .331; L. Waner, Pittsburgh, .329; Ott, New York, .326; and Herman, Cincinnati, .322.

OUIMET TO BE FIT FOR TITLE DEFENSE

Houghton is always the life of any party, and has been since he lived here on Worcester st. with his uncle the late and lamented Andy Houghton, police inspector. Arthur is one of those ad lib comedians, who without attempting to be entertaining at first, but for Houghton and his false moustache giving him the best laugh he has had in many moons, it is doubtful if Francis would have held up under the strain yesterday afternoon.

As soon as the final results of the Walker Cup matches were posted Francis started to recuperate. He had nothing but the highest praise for his players and commented at length on the sportsmanship displayed by the Britishers.

For years, Francis Ouimet has entertained the thought of leading an American Walker Cup team to victory.

Had he known that it would cost him the national championship, Francis would still have gone through with his assignment. As it was, the Walker Cup match took their toll but a few days in Maine, away from golf and the stock market and Francis will be himself again and fit to tackle the best this country has to offer in the amateur golf line at Baltimore.

$40,000 Race Is Two-Horse Affair

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 3 (AP)—The 28th running of the $40,000 Hopeful Stakes, for two-year-olds, over the Saratoga course today drew an entry list of eight colts and one filly, but the railbirds figured it strictly a two-horse race.

As they saw it, the issue lay between W. R. Coe's colt Ladysman and William Woodward's Happy Gal, the year's best juvenile filly. Ladysman entered the Hopeful with a 2-to-1 e[illegible]r Happy Gal in three meetin[illegible] a year.

COL. COLT WINS TWICE.

The Coe colt beat Happy Gal in the United States Hotel Stakes, but dropped a decision to the filly in the Saratoga Special.

Other overnight nominations for the race included Devalera, coupled with Happy Gal, Sandy Bill, Sun Archer and Sun Captor, coupled; Whitney's The Dark, Katty Patch and Repaid.

Ladysman was given top weight at 126 pounds, with Happy Gal carrying 122. Sandy Bill was given 118 pounds to shoulder, Sun Archer 123 and the others 117. The race is at 6½ furlongs.

SCHAAF WANTS ANOTHER SHOT AT MAX BAER

Ernie Schaaf, back in Boston after being knocked out by Max Baer in Chicago just before the gong for the end of the tenth round, asks for a return match.

"All I ask is another crack at Baer" said Schaaf. "I feel I can beat him. I did so in New York and just missed out in Chicago. Gimme I forgot a duck."

Johnny Buckley, Schaaf's manager, showed clippings from Chicago newspapers indicating the judges and referee gave Schaaf a slight edge on points entering the tenth round.

BAER HAD POINTS ENOUGH

Under the Illinois boxing rules, a boxer scoring a knockdown in a round gets nine points and his opponent one. Baer's knockdown in the 10th round gave him the round 9 to 1 and gave him enough points to get the decision.

Buckley said it was 95 degrees in Chicago, and that the heat handicapped Schaaf.

"It was necessary for Ernie to sleep on wet towels the night before the bout," said Buckley. "I don't wish to take any credit away from Baer. He fought a good fight, but the heat sent Schaaf into the ring far from his best.

PRIMO BOUT IN AIR

"I am ready to match Ernie with Baer again and feel confident Schaaf would win in a return engagement."

Buckley stated he has not yet closed for Schaaf to meet Primo Carnera in New York on September 29.

3-DAY REGATTA FOR WINTHROP

With stiff breezes and fair weather, the three day interclub regatta of Cottage Park and Winthrop Yacht Clubs opened today in Winthrop.

The regatta, this year has a special significance in the award of the Sir Thomas Lipton trophy for craft of not less than 15-foot waterlines.

Eleven classes are on the card for the three days, ranging from the cool class to the Marconi 1 class for 18-footers.

Each day of facing will be staged in the afternoon on the high tides and a crowded program of entertainment has been arranged for the balance of the time.

The Marconi races are first on the schedule every day. Then will follow in order the Cottage Park and South Boston races for 15-footers, the handicap class, "L" and Star class, Boston 15-footers, Quincy Cats, Winthrop Hustlers, Snowbirds and Cottage Park Cots. Class 1 starting at 2.30, others following at 3 minute intervals.

Mr. Boston

—By JACK CONWAY—

ALL THAT IS necessary to complete the series of ring upsets is to have Mickey Walker lick Max Schmeling, Steve Smith wallop Kid Chocolate and Ad Zachow put the skids under Lou Brouillard.

The short odds are ringing at boxing halls. Without so much as Foreday victory notes from Jimmy and Jimmy Carney, Mickey McLarnin and Young Corbett, Schaaf, Loughran, Chuck Wiggins and Jack Renault, Mickey McLarnin, Ad Zarnow, Lou Brouillard, Kid Chocolate and Steve Smith, the ring upsets have been coming with a rush.

Mr. Boston

Those hardly were all good ones and caused spanking upsets in the dope.

The surest way to get beat these days is to enter the ring favored. Perhaps the same could be said in the field of sports. Remember how Wall Street was panicked upon Hoover's election by prices hitting the bottom.

The current one, however, has put plenty of real fear in many.

The fighters are trembling for fear that the kids are going to get better and better right now.

The defeats of Walker, Carnera and Loughran are followed by heavy loss of confidence in power.

Risko "The Spoiler"

IT IS PROBABLE that Johnny Risko won't make the grade as champion of the Africanus. I was Tex Rickard's guest in Madison Square Garden when Risko took the measure of Phil Scott. Fighters down in the dumps sleeping into the ring to get the setting sure of Risko's left.

It seemed to me that Risko's left was a peculiar one. It came out of the air, it seemed, and he carried it with him all the way back. It came out of Timbuctoo, Mars, Venus and Lizzie Borden's bedroom.

RISKO HAS often lost to a fourth rater after licking a first class heavyweight. He has never been consistent which is why he will never be a champion.

Kid Chocolate Returns

EDDIE MACK DID a good piece of match making when he signed Kid Chocolate to meet Steve Smith at Braves Field next Friday night. Chocolate has been one of the most consistent performers in the game ever since he was a boy, and he always has come through when he represented Boston.

Chocolate is a fine example of how a man can prepare himself for a championship when he is not favored to win. The Boston fighter has been a consistent performer in the ring for years, but he never has been given a chance to win a championship.

I DON'T THINK Steve Smith will beat Chocolate but if I wouldn't want to mortgage the old homestead and back "The Kid" to the limit. I cannot get the thought of all these upsets out of my mind.

M'KENZIE IN READVILLE RACE FIELD

In the best of daredevil ways for the chances you in the race record the heads in speed on Monday afternoon will be one Doc McKenzie who probably won't attract much attention.

But the Doc will be worth watching. McKenzie arrived in town today and except unforeseen possible circumstances is expected to be treated with something.

"I want to win the race Monday—want to win it for Frankie Farmer."

That was about all he let Doc was a protege of Farmer's who was killed in a race last week. It was a tragedy to Doc who regarded Farmer as a father and he wants to win at Readville Monday in memory of one man who might have been more than a friend.

McKenzie must beat Jack Sharkey, Fred Wynn, Phil Scott, Mel Munn and Ted Carter to score a hat trick. And Doc's got a lot of skill to do.

There will be two more matches and Doc's going to try to get two of them.

The boys are trying to find out what the fans are fighting now.

The defeats of Walker, Carnera and Loughran are followed by heavy loss of confidence in power.

MYOPIA HUNT SHOW MONDAY

The Myopia Hunt Club will hold its 36th annual horse show at the Myopia schools on Monday. The program will be supplemented by a polo match between Myopia and Dedham.

There are 114 entries in the show, which will include a number of classes for hunters and jumpers, also the pony classes and open jumping. Cups will be awarded to the winners in each class.

Out of the Envelopes!

"It might interest show people to know that I was up most all night trying to think up a name for the man who got Bob Burns to play a bazooka," writes Ike Rose. "While I was trying to think of a name for Bob Burns' agent who was in the act of signing him to a contract, Ted Fetter, Fox and Arden's manager, walked in and asked me why I looked so worried. Ted's father was one of the first vaudeville managers in Chicago. He owned the Academy of Music there. I told Ted that I was trying to think of a name for Bob Burns' agent who was in the act of signing him to a contract.

Valentine

A Novel of Love's Disillusion

—By Hazel Livingston—

THE STORY SO FAR

Valentine Macfarlane is the shy, dreamy daughter of Millie Macfarlane, a widow, whose gay romantic nature is not spoiled by poverty. Millie goes to the Orient, and Val is taken to her Aunt Julia's. The years pass and Val finds herself falling in love with Joe Carey, her girlhood paymate, but he goes away. She goes to work in an office and meets Lester Sherwood, who pays her marked attention.

Now Go On With The Story

THIS WASN'T strictly true. Val had spent most of Sunday nursing a sick headache and longing to Aunt Julia . . . time or what happens when you work in an office all day and then go gallivanting out at night.

She wanted to say about the . . . wouldn't . . . twenty-nine . . . wouldn't. Not if she didn't . . .

At first she did not. . . . A boy as handsome as Lester Sherwood would be a rather . . . course. Naturally she couldn't expect him to drop everything else for her. He might have had that date before he even met her.

GIVES UP HOPE

But when the week went by Saturday came again, she gave up hope.

Just to be doing something she dressed in her nice blue chiffon and put on her best pumps, on.

"Going out?"

Aunt Julia, chewing on a cracker and cheese, sprinkled with grated cheese, appeared in the doorway.

"No, I'm not going anywhere."

"Expecting company? I'd better go light up in front—"

Val threw up her hands.

"Say, I'm sick of company. I'll never have company again. Never! Never!"

"Well, don't get excited about it," Miss Martha and added. Her pale eyes glittered. She proceeded to brush away some . . . crumbs. She was no fool. . . . knew what had happened . . . young man of Val's hasn't come back. Well, it was too bad . . . kid cared, but it was a merry . . . the same.

"Let's go to a movie. We can still make the first show if we hurry. I don't mind leaving the dishes."

Val slipped on her coat.

They walked down the pleasant, tree-lined street. It was a lovely evening. Mrs. Clarkson was sitting on her front stoop watching Mr. Clarkson water the lawn.

"Evening, Val. Evening, Miss Macfarlane."

Just like it used to be, Val smiled grimly.

"I had a good job and I left, left, left—"

Aunt Julia stepped along happily . . . oh, so happy, to have the . . . Val back.

They had another "perfect" Sunday, reading, and listening to the radio.

AUNT JULIA ANGRY

Looking back at it it was almost certain that he hadn't had a very good time that last Saturday night. He didn't seem to enjoy the dancing, and he hardly touched his chop-suey.

Still . . . he did say, "See you soon."

Perhaps it was the house. A man like Les is used to . . . and Dorothea's big, comfortable rooms, with firelight and cretonne and flowers.

She went into the front room and looked at the stiff chairs in rows. The furniture wasn't so bad. The chesterfield and chairs were all right. If she could just get rid of that awful cupid doll lamp over the radio, and move things around a bit . . .

Aunt Julia came in. Found her. It was the only time she had ever made Aunt Julia really angry. It was also the only time she ever tried to change anything in Aunt Julia's house.

"When you have your own house," she said, "you can fix it anyway you like. This is mine. I don't want it changed. I'll thank you to put my cupid doll lamp back where you got it!"

Relations between them were strained for a while.

Then Val saw that Aunt Julia was sorry trying to cook things she liked best, paying extra for ice cream for dessert. So she made up.

A plan began to form in her mind. She could . . . him in the office, be very gay and friendly, just as if nothing had happened, and say . . .

"Aunt Julia made lemon pie today. Want to come to dinner?"

She practiced saying it. It sounded all right. Any girl could call any boy and ask him a thing like that. He wouldn't think a thing of it.

Yes, he would. He'd think she was just like all the rest chasing him.

She went into the hall, and sat by the telephone, head in her arms, trying not to call him.

Marjorie Bemis sent out cards for a tea at the Hotel Oakland.

Val hadn't seen much of Marjorie since she started work. But she knew what was going to happen. Marjorie was going to announce her engagement to Frank.

Marjorie did.

After that there were more teas. Another girl, Dora Chalanger, announced hers.

To ease her heart Val wrote about Lester to Joe. It was a glowing description of a perfectly wonderful man whom she saw very seldom but thought about a great deal.

REVENUE SLUMP SPURS DEMAND FOR SALES TAX

Washington, Sept. 3.—Demands for the general manufacturers sales tax grew today as Treasury figures showed receipts under the new tax law again falling below expectations.

Based on August income from miscellaneous taxes, the Treasury recalpis from this class alone for the year will be between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000 short. These include taxes on telephone and telegraph communication, checks, admissions, oil pipe lines and boxing.

This is the second jolt to the administration's budget balancing program. Postmaster-General Brown reported recently that increased postal receipts may reach only $100,000,000 instead of the anticipated $160,000,000 for the year.

SENATOR RING CONVERTED

Faced with an anonymous deficit, treasury officials declared new forms of taxation will be inevitable at the December session, with chief hope centered on adoption of the sales tax as a prolific and equitable taxation method.

Numerous congressional opponents of the sales tax already have switched over and it is now predicted by leaders that Congress will turn to the manufacturers' tax in reviving the revenue law this winter. Senator King of Utah, Democratic member of the Senate finance committee, is the most recent convert.

Miscellaneous internal revenue collections for August exceeded those of the same month last year by only $10,516,000.

PUBLIC DEBT 20 BILLIONS

Miscellaneous collections in August totaled $54,557,700 and for the July-August period, $104,557,300, a decrease of $1,787,000 over last year.

Customs receipts of $42,992,000 fell off $20,000,000 while net receipts were $188,878,000, a decline of $47,000,000.

Expenditures were $587,470,000 an increase of $48,000,000, leaving a deficit of $398,592,000 at the end of August.

The public debt on August 31 was $20,067,179,000, an increase of $3,203,388,000 in a year. The debt is now the highest since June 30, 1925, and only $6,000,000,000 under the peak of August 31, 1919.

FARM STRIKERS REFUSE TRUCE

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 3 (AP)—The agricultural war is on again.

Despite their recent truce farm pickets in this section renewed their attempt to blockade the city from receiving foodstuffs today. Governor E. B. Olson of Minnesota aided the movement in general by urging farmers of his state to withhold non-perishable produce from the market until after Midwest Governors meet in Sioux City September 8.

Pickets near here regewed their attempt at blockade, after the arrival yesterday of five truckloads of livestock. They announced they would keep up the blockade until the Governors' conference, and continue it indefinitely if no farm relief program is formulated.

Meanwhile it was reported that farm strike organizations have been perfected in 40 of Minnesota's 87 counties. Merchants and stockyards men in Sioux City were complaining that the strike was having a detrimental effect on their business.

60 NEWSBOYS OFF TO CAMP

Boston will have a shortage of 60 newsboys next week.

That number left the Harry E. Burroughs Foundation, converted two buses bound for Camp Hale on Lake Squam, Ashland, N. H. This is the first vacation the newsboys had through the Foundation this summer due to lack of funds. Only those boys who are underprivileged and underweight were allowed to make the trip.

Harry B. Hamlin, executive secretary of the Foundation, and 10 councillors accompanied the group. The use of Camp Hale has been extended through the courtesy of Lincoln House and Hale House.

Mother of 2 Killed by Drunken Driver

Newington, Ct., Sept. 3 (INS)—Mrs. Grace Dennison, of Hartford, mother of two children, was killed instantly today in a head-on automobile collision on the Berlin turnpike.

Edmund Boudreau, 28, Hartford salesman, was charged with manslaughter after he said he had admitted he had been drinking. He was driving on the wrong side of the road and had no operator's license.

2 Saved, Home Burns as Lamp Explodes

Amherst, Sept. 3 (AP)—When the young son of Lewis Anequr started down stairs early today with a lighted kerosene lamp in his hand, he fell and the lamp exploded, the blazing oil setting a fire that destroyed the house.

Two young children were rescued by being lowered from a second story window by means of sheets.

LABOR DAY AIR TALKS

Special Holiday Addresses on Air

By N. F. T.

Coast to coast facilities of The National Broadcasting Company will carry the annual message of William Green, American Labor Federation president on Monday at 3 p. m. New England listeners may hear his voice via WBZ waves.

* * *

His address deals with "An Outline of Labor's Plans and Policies" and originates during an organization rally at Pittsburgh, Pa.

HIGHLIGHTS HEARD HERE

Exercises in commemoration of the holiday here will be put on the air from the Parkman Bandstand in Boston Common on Monday, between 11 a. m. and noon, through WNAC Yankee Network stations J. Arthur Moriarity, head of the Boston Central Labor Union, is to be the presiding personality and principal speaker. He will be presented to listeners by Frank Fenton, chairman of the Labor Day committee. These doings include a half hour of stirring band music by Ives Military Band of Boston.

Frank Morrison, dynamic secretary of the American Federation, is likewise due to speak from Washington, D. C. His topic is announced as "The Unemployment Situation and the Five-Day Week." Boston airs this discussion at 1 o'clock, over WBZ-WBZA air channels.

* * *

Mr. Morrison holds forth in a pre-holiday speech which was also scheduled from 1 to 1:30 p.m. His talk, "Labor and the Nation," reaches this section as a WAAB offering.

RUMORS TAKE ROOT

Few radio realm surprises elevated as many eyebrows as did recent revelation of the fact that those two dumb gum gals, Myrt and Marge, are actually mother and daughter. They don't try to hide it any longer. When "Air-craster" Mike Porter, the crack New York Journal broadcasting writer heard about it, he started running down a "tip" about Amos 'n' Andy being father and son. By jingo, maybe their announcer, Bill Hay, is a grandchild and Jack Smith is merely a busy big lady, trying to stamp out hints having to do with her "husband" hiding behind a mountain along with that moon. All of which whispering started last week here in Boston, circling going the newspaper column rounds thereafter in New York. Emphatic denials came from Katherine herself. Great fun—eh? Let's start a few more right now. Pat Barnes, Col. Stoopnagle and Budd are brothers. It's possible Norman Brokenshire is an uncle to the Boswell Sisters. Graham McNamee and Ted Husing might even be cousins—who knows? There's no relation between the Three (NBC) Keys and those (CBS) Mills Brothers, except that they're comperiors. But why go on? Check ups concerning Ruth Etting as an alleged aunt of Singin' Sam also proved without reward. So much for rumored radio relations.

LOCAL LATHER

David Ross has a moving and trucking office adjacent to the Boston Stadium. Between his network announcing Mr. Ross . . . Bob (Big Brother) Emery was in line for local RKO theatre booking with his Harmonica Symphony, but wouldn't let his lads perform until payment of $10 prize was forthcoming . . . That little magazine about town sometimes doesn't look the same without Jack (WTIC) Brinkley's column therein the last issue . . . A new program on the griddle behind local studio scenes should score heavier than any aired heretofore. Taking a day or night, if and when everything dovetails as anticipated, we eagerly await WNAC's fall season of Detroit's Father Coughlin, due over WNAC October 9th . . . Expect that delayed "Cap'n and Widder" series debut this season on Tuesday evening next (WEEI) at 6:40, featuring Bob and Margaret Burlen . . . Jack (Gossiper) Shannon said he doesn't see why "Old Sol" enjoyed all that eclipse publicity this week. "Why!" exclaims Jack, "the moon had it all over the sun that day." . . . Visiting Herman Ed Wynn wants to take all us Hub broadcasting scribes down to New York with him Tuesday afternoon. Furthermore, he isn't kidding . . . There won't be any "Globe Trotter" news flashing (WAAB) from your favorite newspaper on Monday . . . Give a thought now and then to organist Eddie Allen who opens at 8:30 every morning (WNAC) with soothing strains from his console keyboard. It's no soothing strain on Eddie however, to him it's labor and he will mention nothing more or less than just what the name implies.

STATE ST. Hears:

That the manner in which industrials were whirled upward through registration indicates a higher market will be seen next week. It will not be at all surprising if the rails pause for a rest while the other major group has been shaken out of its lethargy. Specialties, which have been suggested here since the first of the week, have done well, but should prove even better trading mediums in the next few sessions.

Odds and Ends

The specialties which the writer is told are strongly sponsored are Gillette, Lorillard, Westinghouse, Johns Manville, Du Pont, Rossia, International Harvester, Phillips Petroleum and Texas Corporation. Buying need not await dips if the market continues as broad as that of today.

The oils, two of which are mentioned above, are likely to be bought forward as suggested here on Wednesday. These equities are due for a final burst of strength before lapsing into their traditional fall and winter dullness. For that reason slops should keep moving up to protect profits.

Rig steel mounted to a fresh peak at the expense of the stale short interest on Friday, but with the number one leader can improve on its recent best. Bullish news is likely to come out next week, for in steel operations and inquiries for rails are expected.

Ticker Talk

Traders who play the intermediate swings can afford to remain on the sidelines . . . This is a fast to and out market which, in every respect, is typical of a broad topping movement . . . And, measured by the averages, it is probably capable of making the 80 suggested here weeks ago.

One commentator puts forward the idea that at least 4 groups have had a part in taking the market up from the July bottom, hinging by the change in tactics every seven to ten days after from hitting the mark . . . Word has it that is passed around that wheat is the thing to watch next week.

Crop reports from the Argentine and other important foreign growers are due soon . . . They are at all bullish, Chicago operators are going to try to rush through domestic prices . . . Deere & Co., listed on the curb, is favored by many traders who rarely wander from the big board.

ACTIVE BUYING KEEPS STOCKS ON UPGRADE

New York, Sept. 3—Active buying today kept shares on the upgrade with trading at a 6,000,000-share-a-day pace for the short session of the New York Stock Exchange. Gains of a point to more than 5 points were recorded, with last prices near the day's best.

Week-end profit taking was barely noticed, as a gain in freight car loadings and predictions of a pick-up in steel production, prompted heavy buying.

RECOVERY IN BONDS

The movement in shares was helped by further recovery in bonds and a good tone in primary commodities. Brokers said public interest in the market had continued to increase with buying coming from many parts of the country.

Utilities and Industrials led the day's forward movement, with alls performing more sedately.

Loadings of revenue freight in the week ended Aug. 27 totaled 587,973 cars, an increase of 19,331 over the preceding week, but 77,578 cars under the corresponding week in 1931 and 446,537 in the 1930 week, according to the American Railway Association.

The gain in freight car loadings this time was substantially above the gains of 40,000 cars or so experienced in good times, but in view of the low level from which it started, the gain on a percentage basis made a good showing.

Several of the steels again reached new highs for the year, with Bethlehem rising more than 5 points, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Gulf States Steel, Republic and McKeesport moved up about two points. In the utilities list Associated Gas & Electric, Cities Service, Commonwealth & Southern, Consolidated Gas and others one or more.

United Aircraft, which has been the subject of gossip and pool activity, shot up about five points. Miscellaneous issues up about two points at the best included Anchor Cap, Eastman, Case, Allied Chemical, Woolworth and Safeway, while issues up a point or so included General Motors, Standard of N. J., du Pont, Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and others. U. S. Steel rose more than a point to a new high for the recovery above 31, and while in about a point of the 1932 high reached in February.

NEW HIGHS ENTERED

Price average of 90 representative issues actually pushed through to new high ground for 1932, getting a share above the high of March. A brisk rise in the market, in advance of a holiday seemed like old times, for bulls usually like that kind of a market, in advance of a shutdown, to correct any deterioration of sentiment before the market reopens. It was just three years ago that the 1929 bull market reached its peak.

Cotton futures closed steady, 14-17 higher; October, 8.83-91; December, 8.99-9.00; January, 9.06; March, 9.18-21; May, 9.33-33; July, 9.42.

Wall Street appreciated its Labor Day week-end with many traders already having left town, but with speculative quarters evidencing enthusiastic over the prospect of business quickening after the holiday, which formally marks the end of the vacation season.

Dow-Jones estimated that steel operations in the Youngstown district next week would jump 10 per cent of capacity, from the low level of 10 per cent this week.

The renewed strength in principal commodities yesterday after recent setbacks, was an important factor in the week-end cheerfulness.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

With laggard industrials joining in the rise and stocks like steel and telephone providing leadership, the bills of the market to go into new high ground for the recovery has added fresh confidence in speculative circles.

Commodity Rise

Nor should the resumption of the rise in commodities be ignored. This is the most important thing in the business picture as it promises much-needed purchasing power.

Rise in wheat was accompanied by the report that the real move was on with the objective of 70 cents a bushel.

Bullish stories on wheat and commodities are widespread. . . One report given credence in well-posted circles is that Washington will announce in the next few days that the Farm Board has sold the last of its wheat holdings . . . Which explains why Case Threshing is included in the buying list flashed by one smart group.

Financing Off

New financing showed its customary summer decline with the total of new issues market during the week down to $2,500,000. This compares with $10,165,000 the week before and with $7,514,000 in the like 1931 week.

Measured by the averages the market not only recovered all of its earlier loss but closed higher on the week. The Dow, Jones averages for 30 bonds closed at 89.03, against 81.85 last week and 93.39 a year ago. The Standard Statistics averages closed at 75.6, against 78.9 a week ago and 91.9 a year ago.

WHEN A WOMAN PASSES FIFTY

-:- Don't Just Sit With Folded Hands -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Plenty of Ways of Getting Much Out of Life After Reaching Half-Century Mark

"WHAT IS LEFT to a woman after fifty?" A wife and mother asks this question. She feels that her world has crumbled. Her children have interests of their own. Two are married; two are launched on successful careers. Her husband no longer is attentive.

Life has taken away her job, and the cruelty and injustice of this appall her.

But life is cruel to anyone who is content to sit with folded hands, and accept. Life's a battle ground, where quitters go to the wall. If this woman can only be made to realize it, the life which is dawning for her is a pretty satisfactory sort of life, if she does not demand all the thrills, emotions and false shows that made up life at twenty.

HORRORS OF FIFTY

Some of the compensations of being fifty are that we're glad to forego some of the thrills and twitters of early youth; that the spotlight doesn't seem essential; most important of all, that we've learned to "laugh it off," so that disappointments seem less like earthquakes; that we can even look at the one time boy friend and be so thankful we didn't marry him, that we could almost fall in love with him a second time from pure gratitude.

Fortunately, this lady who writes me of the horrors of being fifty has what she calls "a modest sufficiency" on which to live. The well-earned leisure to which she is entitled, after bringing up a family of four, can therefore be brightened by some of the agreeable things of life.

Travel and amusement will not be beyond her reach. Plays, movies and concerts may be enjoyed without having to squeeze pennies too hard, and that tremendous solace to a woman of any age—pretty clothes and the ability to be well-groomed—will not me wholly denied her.

THE GOOD WORK

unless she is the pitiful type of middle-aged woman that makes you think of an old doll, this lady will not entirely forego, either, the satisfaction of things of the spirit. The traditional cup of cold water given to those less fortunate is a real source of happiness. Even the beauty specialists grant that nothing takes away aging, petulant lines like the good old-fashioned "kind act."

Not long ago, a woman whose peace of mind had been wrecked by the poverty and distress she saw on every side, made up her mind to do something neighborly every day, as she had no money to give.

Her contribution was to go to an East Side tenement in New York, gather up half a dozen children from their tired, overworked mothers, give them a bath and take them to the park to play. That kindly work ironed a good many wrinkles out of that lady's face!

A Protracted Love Affair

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am thirty and have two children, 10 and 12 years. I am divorced, but have kept much company" with a man 14 years older than I am for nearly eight years. I worked until the last four months, when I was laid off. Now I am almost penniless and I can see a change in him. He tells me about other girls who can get work. But I couldn't get home to look after my children on lunch time if I took a job far away. He thinks children can look after themselves. He is perfectly able to make a home for us for he has a very good business and money saved. I do so want a home and I know he cares as much as I do, but we just can't seem to get to the point. WORRIED.

Nothing is harder to bring to an happy conclusion than one of those romantic affairs which has dragged on for years and got into the doldrums. Certainly if he has been attentive to you for eight years, it's high time you should be married if he has that intention in view. It will require skill and gentleness for you to put to him, as delicately as possible, if he is going to give you the home to which you have looked forward during all those years.

Love or Automobiles?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Sometimes I wonder if there is any such thing as real love left in the world? The kind of love my mother and father had for each other; they endured untold privations and managed to rear and educate three children in a home that was always happy.

I'm a third year medical student, working my way through ...I'm not a rounder, boozefighter, or perpetrator of idiotic practical jokes, neither am I a sissy, being six feet two and holding two athletic championships. I've been really in love twice and each time have been canned in favor of morons who have cars. This seems to be their only advantage, a high powered car in which to rush girls to speakeasies and indulge in a little petting on the way. HARD-BOILED.

You don't mean that you've finished with girls, any more than you mean you're really Hard-Boiled. That wouldn't be possible coming from a home and having had parents such as yours. You've met some moderately hard-boiled young ladies who lacked the ability to pick a winner and your feelings are bruised temporarily. I get scores of letters a week from girls who'd like to meet a man like you.

Daily Pattern of Boston American

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9343

It is the simple frocks that are the most attractive and practical for the kiddies, and they're the easiest to keep fresh and crisp when cotton fabrics are used. Here the pointed details that accent the joining of yoke and cunning flared skirt are delightful, to say nothing of the long puffed sleeves.

Pattern 9343 may be ordered only in sizes 2 to 10.

To get a pattern of this model, send fifteen cents (15c) in coin or stamps (coins preferred). Please write very plainly your name, address, style number and size of each pattern ordered.

For a complete collection of the smartest, most practical and easiest-to-make styles, consult the Marian Martin fall and winter pattern catalog. Its 32 pages include beautiful models for juniors and kiddies, as well as the best of the new season's afternoon, evening, sports and house frocks, lingerie and pajamas. Exquisite items for gift sewing, too. Send for your copy. Price of catalog, fifteen cents. Catalog and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

Address all orders to Boston Evening American Pattern Department, 232 West 18th Street, New York City.

Should Ushers Buy Wedding Flowers?

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. My cousin was an usher for a recent wedding and the groom asked all his ushers, or rather told them, that they had to pay five dollars for flowers for their partners. I do not think this was correct, am I right?

2. If there are no tongs when sugar cubes are served, is it correct to use your fingers?

3. When sitting at a table, regardless of dinner, luncheon, and so forth, and someone is being presented to you, should you stand up if he is standing? Does it make any difference in sex or age?

L.

1. You're right . . . this wasn't good taste and it wasn't according to custom. The bridal attendants shouldn't be "taxed" for the privilege of being his attendants.

The flowers of the bride are provided by the groom. The flowers of the bridal attendants are usually provided by the bride and her parents, but they are planned as part of the costumes of the attendants.

Sometimes the groom asks for the privilege of sending these flowers to the bridal attendants . . . but evidently not in this case! This young man is evidently overwhelmed by so much discussion of budgets! So he balanced his own!

2. Yes. Of course, if you wish to be ultra-careful, you may use your teaspoon, but this isn't necessary.

3. If a man is being presented to a woman who is sitting at a table, she does not rise. The only exception might be if the gentleman were so old or so distinguished that she would wish to show him special honor and consideration.

Chicken for the Picnic Lunch

By MARTHA LEE

NO PICNIC that really merits the name is complete without fried chicken, especially in early Fall. Just think of heaps of drumsticks and breasts and thighs and wings, fried to golden deliciousness, great bowls of potato salad, piles of luscious red tomatoes, and then decide you'll wind up the summer season with a gorgeous Labor Day picnic.

The price for excellent quality fryers make the sweet budget watchers sit up and take notice that they can serve fried chicken at the Labor Day celebration without making a deep dent in the week's food budget.

In preparing the picnic lunch there is always the question of the best way to pack the chicken so it will keep its delicious flavor. Chicken fried the day before and cooled thoroughly before being put into the hampers has justly a great army of devotees. This plan allows the cook to do the cooking where she has the most convenient equipment.

But if the picnic spot is not too far away, the chicken can be kept hot, or at least pleasantly warm, by packing the freshly fried chicken tightly into a heavy crockery jar or oven-glass utensil which has been warmed first. Cover the container with wax paper and a lid and wrap in heavy paper. The paper acts as an insulator to keep the heat in.

A convenient way both to transport and to serve the picnic chicken is to put each piece into a buttered bun, sandwich fashion. The oval buns used for hot dog sandwiches are especially good to use this way. If the pieces of chicken are put into the buns when the meat comes hot from the skillet, the bun absorbs both the drippings and the aroma from the chicken, and the whole sandwich has a tempting chicken flavor.

Here are two new sandwich fillings that may fill the vacuum that seems to develop in most tummies before we've travelled many miles on our holiday picnic.

Nippy Cheese Filling

2 tbsps. tapioca
2 cups strained tomatoes, strained and heated
2½ cups (½ lb.) grated cheese
1½ cups (¼ lb.) dried beef, finely ground
½ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. mustard
¼ tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Add tapioca to tomato juice, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add cheese gradually and stir until melted. Remove from fire, add dried beef and seasonings, and allow to cool before spreading on bread. Makes 2½ cups filling.

Bacon and Pickle Filling

¼ cup mayonnaise
6 slices crisp broiled bacon, chopped
3 medium dill pickles, chopped

Combine ingredients and chill. Makes ¾ cup filling.

P. S. The Fall classes of the Martha Lee Cooking School will open September 20 with classes for brides and business girls on Tuesdays from 8:30 to 8:30 P. M. and a Homemakers' Class Wednesdays from 2 to 4. Better write Martha Lee today for your ticket of admission for the ten weeks' course. No charge, of course, but we ask you not to enroll unless you feel sure of attending at least seven lessons, which will entitle you to a diploma at graduation.

Autumn Calls for Bright Garb

THE country calls in early autumn and there are some lovely clothes for semi-sports wear, more formal in character than the same type of thing made for summer use. A new sports ensemble is of black basket weave woolen. It has a sleeveless jacket with extended shoulders, a high-built skirt and a high waisted sweater-blouse with stripes of black, red, blue and green on the wide sleeves.

EYELASHES should match the frock, according to a "freak" Paris fashion. The lashes, which are either dyed or covered with artificial ones, are said to make the eyes themselves change color.

WHEN YOU are making clear starch for laundry use, be careful to use as little cold water as is absolutely necessary in the preliminary mixing; otherwise the boiling water will not "cook" it sufficiently, and sticky ironing will result.

DRESSES LIKE COATS

A Bruyere Creation

SKETCHED IN PARIS

Bruyere makes this half black and half white lapin fur scarf and hat of green felt cut with a broad brim, creased crown model. The new coat dress is in black moussia with a single button fastening, cut with big arm eyes and a well crossed front opening.

The Marry-Go-Round

The Apple of Discord

By HELEN ROWLAND

NEARLY EVERY WOMAN goes into marriage with the secret conviction that a man needs to be "mothered." And nearly every man goes to the altar with firm conviction that a woman needs a "boss."

And that's where the battle begins! The struggle for supremacy is the first step toward the divorce court.

The average man's big idea seems to be to strong man to knock some of the headstrong silliness out of her, and drive her with a tight rein.

Helen Rowland

Even while he is telling her how beautiful and dazzling she is, he is planning to make her give up cocktails, wear more clothes and more bathing suit and wipe off the lip rouge and mascara.

Even while he is promising to make her "happy" forever—he is plotting to make her OVER!

He loves her because she is such a gay, daring, original, efficient young thing. But wait until HE "gets her": He'll trim off all the raw edges, put a "soft finish" on her manners, and bring her wild ways down to a slower tempo. What a chance!

Meanwhile, if she's a normal woman, the girl is already mentally selecting his shirts and cravats, planning to put him on a diet, deciding just which of his bachelor friends she'll make him cut out, and conspiring to make him delete his before-dinner cocktail—"all for his own good," of course.

Even while she is consulting his marvellous "judgment" and making him feel "big and masterful," she is thinking of him as just a spoiled boy who needs a guide, philosopher, guardian and valet.

Even before she knows his middle name or he has discovered the color of her eyes, he is mentally remodeling her into a nice, tame, little housewife and tying her down to the domicile, while she is mentally following him around with a hot-water bottle and recasting him into the "lams husband" role.

Thus, in time of peace, do they prepare for war!

Three-quarters of a man's love for a woman is love of conquest. And three-quarters of a woman's love for a man is fraternal tenderness—and the desire to "mother" him and fuss over him.

Oh, well—every man loves to be "mothered" and fussed over—a little. And every woman loves to be "mastered" and fussed—a little. But nobody loves a reformer or a life guardian!

Which is why so many nice marriages go sour after a few years.

The Apple of Discord in the Garden of Love is the struggle to turn marriage into a reformatory!

Don't Neglect Your Teeth

YELLOW teeth are not always the result of neglect. Smoking discolors them. When the outer delicate surface of dentine wears away, the snowy whiteness disappears. A thorough prophylaxing by the dentist will help the teeth to retain good color and will be of benefit besides to the gums, into which tartar burrows no matter how often the teeth are brushed.

Non-Spillable Box

CHEERS for the compounders of cosmetics! One bright mind has created the non-spillable powder box, providing it with protective shoulders that keep it from spreading its precious contents over the make-up kit. Also it has dawned upon another budding genius to provide the sisterhood with tiny packages of cleansing tissues for the removal of lip stick smears. Much better than using towels and enraging the laundress.

Gain in War on 'White Plague'

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

IT WAS not long ago that consumption, or tuberculosis, was a terribly dreaded disease. Everyone feared the "white plague," which threatened every household.

Although tuberculosis is still regarded as one of mankind's greatest enemies, it is not feared as it used to be. To what do we owe this change of feeling?

Fifty years ago the germ of consumption, the "tubercle bacillus," was discovered. This marked the beginning of a new era in the prevention and cure of tuberculosis. Shortly after this discovery came the invention of the X-ray machine. This instrument enabled physicians to observe the early signs of tuberculosis of the chest and other parts of the body.

Dr. Copeland

With the advancements made in hygiene, the recognition of the necessity of fresh air, sunlight and rest, the number of cases of tuberculosis has gradually decreased. As our knowledge increases, it is hoped that eventually the disease will disappear.

One of the greatest contributions to the control of tuberculosis is the method made in surgery. When the disease is confined to one lung, great benefit can be gained by chest surgery. By means of a minor operation, a condition known as artificial pneumothorax is produced. That is, air is introduced into the chest cavity which contains the lung.

Sufficient air is forced in to collapse the involved lung. This closes the cavities, preventing the accumulation of pus and germs and stops the spread of the germs of tuberculosis to other portions of the lung and to other parts of the body. Many cases of tuberculosis have been cured by this simple operation.

In more advanced cases, where the lung has grown fast to the chest wall, it may be necessary to have a more extensive operation. In such cases parts of the ribs are removed. This more advanced operation is known as "thoracoplasty" and, in many instances, the results obtained have been extremely beneficial.

Persons afflicted with tuberculosis are no longer considered as an inevitable fate. When the disease is recognized in its early stages, cure is possible. In more advanced cases, relief and comfort may be obtained over a period of many years. It is neglect of the disease that is dangerous, both for the afflicted person himself and for those who come in contact with him.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Mrs. C. J. Q.—How often should one bathe when not robust?

A.—A tepid bath three or four times a week should not prove harmful.

V. S. Q.—What should you advise for a bad liver condition which causes coated tongue and unpleasant breath?

A.—You should be under the care of a physician.

Dresses More Than Ever Like Coats

By PARIS BUREAU

Paris, Sept. 3—The new coat-dresses in Paris look more like coats than ever. Some of them may actually be worn over light silk dresses, and are made of materials that lend themselves to use as coats. Some of them are, however, strictly "dress" in manner, as far as fit and material are concerned, but keep to coat lines as to cut.

The current favorites are those which are easily fastened. A single button to undo, or perhaps two; a tightly fitting belt—and one of these dresses is off in a jiffy. They require no added warmth of a coat to be taken on or off in restaurants, and leave a busy woman with extra time which she would ordinarily occupy with her clothes.

Bruyere is one of the French designers who has decided this convenience idea thoroughly. Her costumes of this type follow carefully the lines of her coats—the plain and tucked to mark well the curves of the body; and well-crossed front fastenings that do not easily flap open in walking.

Her cost-dress in today's sketch is one of this type—made of a black moussia woolen known as moussia, in black. There is a single button fastening at the square neckline, and a leather belt. A detachable scarf of black lapin trimmed with white lapin furthers the coat effect.

The sketch also shows a broad-brimmed version of the Bruyere crossed-crown hat—this time in bright green felt, trimmed with silver and white buttons.

Daily True Story

A Summer Triangle

THE GIRL at the end of the little dock leading from the cottage to the lake, dabbling her feet in the water. Her sky-blue swimming suit, contrasted with the brown of her tanned back and made a bright splotch of color on the landscape.

The girl—Jean—was listening for the sound of a red motor-boat. But it did not come. All she heard was the lap-lap of the water against the spiles. At last she rose angrily, dived into the water, came up with an angry shake of her head, paddled out and sped through the trees to the orange colored cottage several hundred yards from the shore on the dirt roadway leading to the water.

Just before Jean reached her own door a tall young man in a black bathing suit, stained by the sun to the hue of copper, stepped out of the shrubbery.

WANTS A BOAT

"Oh, hello, Harry," said Jean, pausing an instant. "Going for a swim?"

"Anything you say," was the reply. "Want to come in again?"

Jean listened again for a moment. She was still frowning. Her eyes turned once more to scan the lake.

"No," said she, very positively.

"Sorry," said Harry, losing his smile. "Counted on racing you out to the float."

Jean turned suddenly from her inspection of the lake. "Harry," she said, "can you run a motor-boat?"

"Sure," said he.

"Know where to borrow one?"

Harry's brow wrinkled, then: "Why, I think old man Simmons, down in the south cove, would lend me his. But why the yen for a motorboat; I've got the canoe."

"Don't ask questions," commanded Jean. "I'll change in five minutes. We'll get out the car and ride down to the cove. I want you to take me out for a ride."

"Okay, Jean, anything you say."

Chester Doring was a very good looking young man, with wavy blonde hair, an athletic figure, plenty of money, and a very good opinion of himself.

His frequent trips from the hotel to the south end, where he met Jean every day, had interested every dowager on the lake.

But this day Chester had cut out the motorboat trip. He sat on the bench at the big dock fronting the hotel and beside him was a regal looking girl with flashing black eyes and midnight hair—a newcomer on the guest list.

HIS BEST "LINE"

The girl was laughing merrily Chester was playing up to her with his very best "line." They had just ceased laughing at a good story when around the turn swung old man Simmons' boat making more racket than a machine gun.

Chester turned idly toward the water as he continued to talk to the charming brunette. But he paused in the middle of a sentence and gazed intently at the speeding boat.

"By jove," he exclaimed suddenly. Then, turning apologetically to the girl: "I think—that's someone I know." He looked again, exclaimed half to himself, "Why, it's Jean."

Chester's smile was gone. He turned to his companion with a half guilty look. "How about getting into a swimming suit and going out on the lake?" he asked. "Not for me," said the statuesque brunette. "I never swim in fresh water."

"If you'll pardon me," Chester began desperately.

"Certainly," said the girl a bit rigidly.

Chester left her like a bound freed of the leash. He dashed to a smaller dock nearby, jumped into his red speedboat and started the motor.

CHESTER IS TOO LATE

Harry and Jean were just coming down to the shore where their boat was moored when the red craft, with Chester at the tiller, bumped its nose into the sandy shore and came to a stop.

Chester threw a small anchor ashore and leaped out.

She turned as he hallooed, looked over with a hostile air.

"Morning, Jean, said Chester, sparing a second to frown at Harry. "I—I was just coming over for you."

"Oh, yes?" said Jean. "Lost your watch? It seems to me that the engagement was for two hours ago."

"Well, you see," began Chester lamely.

"Oh, yes, I saw," Jean interrupted. "Harry couldn't happen to find Mr. Simmons' field glasses in the boat. Yes, I saw."

Jean stopped him with an imperious wave of a browned hand.

"Jealous?" she asked with an ironic laugh, which struck a chill to Chester's hopes even before he heard her out. "Jealous? Why should I be when I've just promised to marry Harry?"

"Con—congratulations," murmured Chester hollowly.

"Thanks," said Jean as she turned her back to him and let Harry help her into old man Simmons' boat.

All names of characters in this story are fictitious.

SELECT HOME FURNITURE

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Topham of Alfred, Me., who were married in the darkness of the moment of the eclipse, are shown at Morgans, 730 Washington st., as salesman Jack Ellington helped them select the furniture for their new home.

The brightest moment in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie W. Topham occurred during the darkest, to wit, the recent eclipse. It was then that their wedding took place. The young couple were married in Alfred, Me., on Aug. 31, while the solar phenomenon was taking place.

They visited Morgan's Furniture Store, 730 Washington st., Boston, yesterday to select a complete furniture outfit for their home. They were served by Mr. Ellington, who commented on the attractiveness of the newlyweds.

A young married girl, whose husband has played around, worked out her problem despite the obstacles of a mother-in-law who was jealous of her, the allurements of another blonde secretary and the blandishments of women who held their affections cheaply. If you and your husband enjoyed Beatrice Burton's "The Flapper Wife" you'll get a greater thrill in reading her newest story, "Mary Faith," beginning in the Boston American next Tuesday, Sept. 6.
